Firms, Teachers to Meet

Program Is Explained On B-E Day for Area

This is the first of a series of articles released by the Business-Education Day Committee of the Kingston Area Chamber of Commerce. Each of the series will contain a brief description of several of the industries and businesses cooperating in the third annual Business-Education Day Friday, Jan. 24.

There will be 266 teachers from Kingston schools, including parochial, visiting 34 cooperating firms. Each will entertain a pre-assigned number of teachers. All of the teachers and firm representatives will meet in the auditorium of the Kingston High School at 8:45 a. m. After a short program each group will be transported to their assigned destination.

J. Ellis Briggs, Inc.

J. Ellis Briggs started in the home appliance, heating and air-conditioning business in 1947, locating on the outskirts of Kingston on a heavily travelled highway. The firm also handles steel and wooden kitchen cabinets. Mr. Briggs is president of the firm. At the present time, the Briggs firm employs 14 people and operates six motor vehicles. An area with a radius of approximately 12 miles is served. They are authorized dealers for Westinghouse home appliances, commercial heating and air-conditioning, as well as Youngstown steel kitchen cabinets, Whitehall wooden kitchen cabinets, Caloric gas ranges, White water heaters and water softeners.

Freeman Publishing Co.

The Freeman Publishing Company publishes the only local daily paper, the Kingston Daily Freeman, an evening newspaper, published daily except Sunday. It was established in 1871. This paper now has a daily circulation of over 16,700. There are 90 employees with an annual payroll of over a half-million dollars.

Each daily edition of the Freeman has from 14 to 44 pages, with an average of 22 pages for the past year. Over 800 tons of newsprint were used.

The paper has five main departments, editorial, advertising, business, composing and press. It is estimated that about 97 per cent of the trading area is covered by The Freeman and over 94 per cent of the entire circulation is in the hands of the subscribers the same day as publication.

Electrol, Inc.

In 1940, Electrol Incorporated moved to Kingston from Clifton, N. J., where it was engaged in the oil burner business. That year also marked the experimental work and development of the present hydraulic business.

Electrol now manufactures hydraulic equipment and landing gear oleo struts for military and commercial aircraft. The company also

Call 1st Polaris Test Successful

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — The Navy launched a Polaris ballistic missile test vehicle here today.

It was the first Polaris test officially identified as such. Judging from its performance at the start, and until it disappeared down the Air Force missile test range, it was a highly successful shot.

It streaked away, straight as an arrow, toward its undisclosed target. The Lockheed missile was launched at one minute before 8 a. m. (EST), less than an hour after sunrise, into a cloudless blue sky.

No State Money Available for Starting Bridge

Travel over the four Hudson River bridges under control of the New York State Bridge Authority increased by 6.73 per cent in 1957, and the gain included 659,418 vehicles clocked at the Kingston-Rhinecliff Bridge in less than 11 months of operation, the authority reported today.

Gains were shown on two other bridges, but the Mid-Hudson at Poughkeepsie showed a 6.23 per cent loss. This, a report last year noted, was attributed to a change in the travel pattern of IBM employees after the opening of the Kingston bridge, and to use of the new span by other persons who had previously crossed the river in the Poughkeepsie-Highland area.

An Albany report today indicated that the authority will indicate that the authority will

30-Inch Snowfall Covers Part of N.Y.

ALBANY (AP) — A mammoth storm that buried parts of New York State in up to 30 inches of snow appeared to have relented somewhat today.

The storm, the season's worst so far, left a total of nine dead. The snowfall was expected to dwindle to flurries over most of the state today and tomorrow, the Weather Bureau said.

Thruway Speed Cut

While workmen labored to clear the roads, snow continued to make travel hazardous over most of the state. The Thruway Authority reported the snowfall continuing this morning from Catskill in the southeast to Batavia in the west, and the speed maximum was reduced from 60 to 35 miles an hour.

The Weather Bureau reported snow depths up to 25 inches in the areas of eastern New York cities and up to 12 in western New York. Eight inches had fallen since yesterday morning at Glens Falls for a total of 25 since Tuesday. An additional five inches at Rome and four at Albany made a total of 17 at both places. Other on-the-ground measurements reported by the Weather Bureau:

Cobleskill 21, Rochester and Elmira 12, Syracuse and Utica 11, Oneonta 9, Newburgh and Poughkeepsie 8, Massena 5, LaGuardia Airport, New York City, 4, Bing-

Brett Gives Substantiating Figures on $276,284 Budget

Compares Service in 3 Cities

Twice Territory Covered Locally

A herculean job of providing coverage for an area twice that of Newburgh and Poughkeepsie and with less personnel should preclude any cut in his submitted budget of $276,284.07 for 1958 for the Kingston Fire Department, Chief James M. Brett said today.

The fire department figure is included in the proposed city budget on which the Common Council is expected to vote Jan. 22.

The proposed city budget, fixing a tax rate of $54.40, 84 cents higher than that originally submitted by former Mayor Frederick H. Stang was left with minority party members Tuesday night for study.

Chief Gives Figures
In a compilation of comparative figures for fire departments of the three cities — Newburgh, Poughkeepsie and Kingston — Chief Brett said the following facts should be considered before there is any contemplation to reduce his submitted budget:

Populations of the three cities are Newburgh 32,000; Poughkeepsie 41,000 and Kingston 30,000. Newburgh, with 76 permanent paid personnel plus 50 paid call men, 23 officers and five paid houses, covers an area of four square miles.

Poughkeepsie, with 73 permanent paid personnel, 12 officers and eight paid houses, provides fire coverage for 4.78 square miles.

Twice the Coverage
Kingston, the chief noted, is expected to provide fire coverage for 8.93 square miles—twice the total of that in Newburgh and Poughkeepsie—with 49 permanent paid personnel, 10 officers and three paid stations.

The Newburgh Fire Department, Chief Brett said, has a budget for 1958 of $408,563.92, which already has been accepted by officials in that city.

Also accepted is a fire department budget for 1958 of $419,660 in Poughkeepsie. Chief Brett also pointed out that the number of miles of streets in Kingston is almost twice that in Newburgh or Poughkeepsie.

Only 49 Men Here
"It is also interesting to note," Chief Brett said that our department is doing a job, which we pridefully feel is a good one, with 49 men that Newburgh and Poughkeepsie are doing with a total of 149 men."

Chief Brett said Newburgh and Poughkeepsie also maintain fire prevention bureaus.

"We have none, but should have," he said.

Augustine Is Named by Radel To Police Board

Mayor Edwin F. Radel today announced appointment of Roland A. Augustine, of 74 Harding Avenue, local insurance man, to the police board to complete the unexpired term of Willis R. Locke, of 6 Smith Avenue, who recently resigned.

A native of Albany, the new commissioner, came to Kingston in 1942. He served as plant accountant for Electrol, Inc., 85 Grand Street, for two years, and in 1944 entered the service. He served with the 709th Tank Battalion in the European Theatre. He entered the insurance business after his discharge, and in 1954 opened an office at 68 Main Street. Last June the business was moved to 255 Wall Street.

Commissioner Augustine is married to the former Elizabeth Perry, of Kingston. They have two children, Johanna and Roland.

Former Commissioner Locke said he resigned because he had reached the age at which members of the police force are automatically retired, and he felt that the board should have younger men serving. He had served on the board for 16 years. His latest term was due to expire May 1, this year.

County Allotted $1,073,680 Share Of Education Aid

Ulster County will receive $1,073,680 as its share of $118,515,030 distribution of state aid for education, State Comptroller Arthur Levitt announced today.

County supervisory districts will receive $622,680 and cities and villages have been allocated $451,000.

The city of Kingston will receive $202,000 and Saugerties Central School District $87,000. No breakdown of allocations to towns and villages was available yesterday.

New York City and four other so-called deferred payment cities are receiving a total of $36,491,000 which represents the first payment of state assistance due them for the 1956-57 school year.

The apportionment to the other cities and villages totals $36,044,000. Supervisory districts are receiving a total of $45,980,030. The payment to these cities, villages and supervisory districts represents the second quarter of state aid due them on the basis of statistics for their 1956-57 school years.

Checks are being mailed to county treasurers who will distribute the money to fiscal officers of the individual school districts in accordance with apportionment computations made by the State Department of Education and verified by the State Department of Audit and Control.

'More Guts on Missiles'

Aircraft Chief Gives Views to Speed Output

WASHINGTON (AP) — A pioneer aircraft manufacturer today called for "more guts and less gobbledygook" to speed production of U. S. missiles and anti-missile missiles.

Donald W. Douglas Sr., chairman of the board of the Douglas Aircraft Corp., said only "a small fraction of the necessary funds" has been made available for work on the Zeus anti-missile project on which his firm is working with Bell Telephone Laboratories and Western Electric.

Not Enough Available

"Nearly two years ago we felt this weapon was sufficiently feasible to warrant a go-ahead," he told the Senate preparedness subcommittee, "but so far only a small fraction of the necessary funds has been made available."

In the case of the 1,500-mile intermediate range ballistic missile Thor, Douglas said that even after successful test firings "we waited from August to December for an order to increase production of this much-needed missile."

But Douglas testified that on the whole he could say "most unequivocally that I do not share the gloomy opinion of so many that the race for weapon supremacy has been lost forever and that we are permanently doomed to the role of a secondary power."

One of the most formidable obstacles to getting things done swiftly and efficiently, Douglas said, "is the time-consuming, agonizing process of waiting for official decisions."

Cites Courage as Vital

People who have authority "must also have the courage and foresight to make the proper decisions at the right time," Douglas said, and he added:

"In other words, what we need is more guts and less gobbledygook."

Douglas' call for speedier firm decisions paralleled a comment by Sen. Cotton (R-NH), who said in a statement "there are so many layers of decision-making officials and boards in the armed services that the Russians can put a program into action while we are conferring about it."

The emphasis was on missiles in hearings at both ends of the Capitol.

The Senate preparedness subcommittee called in three more missile and aircraft manufacturers for their views on how this nation can match and surpass expanding Soviet Russian power in aircraft, missiles and Sputniks.

Asked to testify in open hearings were President Donald W. Douglas of Douglas Aircraft, now producing the Thor ballistic missile for the Air Force; President James H. "Dutch" Kindelberger of North American Aviation Inc., maker of engines for rockets and missiles; and President William M. Allen of Boeing Aircraft, which manufactures long-range B52 jet bombers.

Speaker Is Named For Lincoln Day Dinner Feb. 11th

The annual Lincoln Day dinner, sponsored by the Ulster County Women's Republican Club, will be held here Tuesday, Feb. 11, it was announced today, and the guest speaker is to be Assemblyman Malcolm Wilson.

Federick H. Stang, former Republican mayor of Kingston, will be toastmaster of the dinner which is to start at 7:30 p. m. in the Governor Clinton Hotel.

Announcement of the dinner was made by the co-chairmen, Mrs. Robert Rognon of Plattekill and Mrs. Leslie Hotelling, 20 Harwich Street, Town of Ulster.

Anticipate Large Crowd

They said they hope to receive reservations from all sections of Ulster County from Republicans and their friends, who consider Lincoln a great philosopher as well as one of the nation's most outstanding leaders.

Assemblyman Wilson, who represents the First Assembly District of Westchester County, was chosen as speaker because he is a great admirer of Lincoln, and one of the outstanding Republicans in the Legislature at Albany.

Fine Speaker

He is considered one of the most forceful speakers in the Assembly.

A graduate of Fordham College and Fordham Law School, he was admitted to the State Bar in 1936. He began 19 years of public service as an assemblyman in 1939.

Wilson is chairman of the Committee on Codes and of the Joint Legislative Committee to Study Employee Retirement System. He is a member of the Law Revision Commission and of the Judicial Conference, and also serves on the Assembly Committee on Excise and Penalties.

Defects Admitted In Papers

Tangle Occurs In Demanding Data

Show cause orders in conjunction with probes of city and county affairs continued coming from several sources, it was noted today, as papers on file indicated willingness for withdrawal of subpoenas issued against county officials.

From the Reuter Commission today, came an order to show cause, granted by Supreme Court Justice Donald E. Taylor, returnable Monday in Albany, under which the County of Ulster is asked to show cause why subpoenas served on county officials on Jan. 9, should not be permitted to be withdrawn.

Records Demanded

The subpoenas sought to have county officials produce books and records before the commission at its offices in the state armory.

It is noted, meanwhile, that the affidavit of Benjamin F. Nolan, chief counsel to Reuter, disclosed that the commissioner of the investigation wishes to withdraw subpoenas issued to county officials.

Plan Corrections

The office of Paxton Blair, state solicitor general, said Nolan had advised him that there were "certain formal defects in subpoenas, and we wish to withdraw the subpoenas and correct the defects."

The office of Blair also indicated that at a hearing the subpoenas were attacked on other grounds, and the court perceiving the breadth of the inquiry, which would have to be made to determine the matter in accordance with the law, adjourned the hearing and put in effect a stay of all action pursuant to the subpoenas.

County Attorney Arthur A. Davis Jr., objecting to the service and on January 13 obtained an order to show cause why the subpoena should not be vacated and quashed and service set aside on the grounds the Reuter Commission had no power to remove public records from the offices. That order is returnable before Justice Taylor at Albany on January 24 at 10 a. m.

Court Gives Order

While that matter is pending the Reuter Commission secured their order yesterday from Justice Taylor, returnable on Monday at 10 a. m. in Albany, to determine why the commission should not be permitted to withdraw the subpoenas served on January 9 on the county officials.

County Attorney Davis was served today with a copy of the order to show cause and stated that the Reuter commission asked withdrawal on the grounds the subpoenas were "defective."

Not Determined Yet

Whether the move to withdraw the subpoenas will be agreed to by the county has not been determined.

County Attorney Davis stated that to consent to withdrawal of the subpoenas as requested by the Reuter Commission would still not determine the question as to the right of the commission to subpoena books and public records out of the county offices. He pointed out that the removal of books and papers from public offices to the armory would "hamper the duties of the public offices involved," and for that reason objection is made to the Reuter summons to produce public records and papers at the commission office in the state armory.

Wharton Has Dairy Bill Opposes Lowering of Price Supports

A bill to maintain present price support levels on dairy products was introduced in the House of Representatives, Washington, D. C., this week by Congressman J. Ernest Wharton, who opposes lowering them as scheduled on April 1.

Wharton, a resident of Richmondville, Schoharie County, represents the 29th Congressional District, which takes in rich dairying sectors of his own county, Ulster, Greene, Dutchess and Columbia counties.

The Congressman said producer prices, which have been fairly stable during the past few months, represent but a fraction of the consumer's dollar.

He holds that the small margin represented by lowered supports will never be passed along to the consumer in any event and that the revised order which went into effect August 1 should be given a year or two trial operation without radical change.

Wharton also called attention to the various self-help proposals now pending before Congress, designed to permit dairymen to effect their own plan to control surplus production in areas such as New York milkshed.

BUSY SCENE ON TRADING FLOOR—This was the scene on trading floor of the New York Stock Exchange Jan. 16 as a strong buying rush developed in response to news that margin requirements had been cut from 70% to 50%. Profit-taking reduced some gains in stocks later but the market remained higher than the Jan. 15 close. (AP Wirephoto)

Farm Plan Under Fire

New Markets Possible, Benson Says

WASHINGTON (AP)—Secretary of Agriculture Benson today urged Congress to ease crop production controls and to authorize lower price supports as a means of opening new farm markets.

In a statement prepared for a Senate Agriculture Committee hearing, the secretary asked specifically for quick action on a broad program outlined by President Eisenhower in a special message on agriculture yesterday.

The program immediately drew heavy fire from many farm state congressmen.

son characterized major features of current farm programs as failures.

"The shortcomings of our past programs are quite clear," he said. "We have tried to legislate prices artificially, without full consideration for the inevitable forces of supply and demand. 'We have tried to control production artificially, without full consideration for the efficiency and ingenuity of farmers. In other words, we have lacked realism. Our farm programs—no matter how desirable in objective—have failed to get the job done.'"

The result, he said, has been

City Officials To Pump Gas on Saturday for Polio

Kingston's March of Dimes is expected to move ahead effectively tomorrow when Mayor Edwin F. Radel and Corporation Counsel William A. Kelly start pumping gas at the City Hall Shell Service Center, Broadway and West O'Reilly Street.

Through an arrangement with the management of the service station the profit gained by their efforts will go to the March of Dimes fund to aid in combating polio.

It was also noted today that plans are advancing for the annual variety show to be given Jan. 27 to aid the drive, and tickets were mailed out yesterday. The show will open at 8 p. m. in the high school auditorium.

Women of the Dorfieldman Society, First Presbyterian Church, prepared the tickets for mailing as they had done last year.

Return envelopes, inserted, are returnable to a box in the up-town post office. They will be picked up by Howard Stephens, assistant cashier of the State of New York National Bank, who is treasurer.

The show will be produced, directed and staged by Dick McCarthy, of The Freeman editorial staff, and Donald A. MacIsaac, of the Sabin Advertising Agency.

Louis A. Suhrhoof, of 121 Emerson Street, is city chairman of the drive.

African Union Church Has Doctrination Day

Doctrination Day was observed at the African Union Methodist Church last Sunday and was well attended throughout the day, according to the Rev. S. B. Chappell, pastor.

Speakers from various churches participated in the discussions. Frederic Snyder, lecturer and world traveler, guest speaker told of his experience with God and his contact in various Christian churches.

He illustrated his remarks with a baton made in Africa. The baton was presented to Bishop J. O. W. Weiss of the Monrovia Church who gave it to Snyder when he resided in the Government House at St. Thomas, Virgin Islands.

3 Persons Hurt In Crash Near Local Library

Three persons were injured in a two-car mishap at about midnight near the city library on Broadway.

A car, owned by the Ulster Tool and Die Works, 437 Washington Avenue, and driven by Anthony G. Pizzarelli, 42, of John Street, West Hurley was headed north on Broadway. The other car, owned and operated by Miles Bahl, 22, of 336 Albany Avenue, was headed south on the street, and skidded, police said.

Bahl and Mary Ann Pulverenti, 17, of Port Ewen, were admitted to the Benedictine, for treatment of injuries, the extent of which was unknown. Pizzarelli, police said, walked to Kingston Hospital and was treated for lacerations of the forehead and nose. Both cars were towed from the scene.

Nirri Is Fair After 9W Mishap

Albert Eugene Nirri, 30, of 160 First Avenue, was reported in fair condition at Benedictine Hospital following a one-car accident on Route 9W, Town of Ulster, about one mile south of Ferraro's Bowlarama early Thursday evening.

Kingston State Police reported Nirri was a passenger in a 1953 sedan owned and operated by Raymond Joseph Glass, 24, of 60 West Pierpont Street.

Trooper Richard Ryan reported Nirri suffered lacerations of the forehead and was removed to the hospital in a private car.

The Glass car was headed south when it skidded out of control and struck an embankment on the left side of the highway, Trooper Ryan reported.

Time of the mishap was set at 6:30 p. m.

Esopus to Discuss Litigation Tonight

Progress of litigation involving the Town of Esopus and the Central Hudson Gas and Electric Corporation in the matter of assessments on certain utility properties in the Rifton area will be reviewed at a special meeting of the town board tonight at 7:30 o'clock.

Supervisor Roger Mabie said the meeting, scheduled last night, was postponed because of inclement weather.

Attorney Robert Stapleton of Ellenville who has been handling the litigation since its inception some six years ago will review the case at the meeting, which will be held in the Town of Esopus auditorium.

The utility company is seeking lower assessments on the property.

Coldest Spot Warm

WASHINGTON (AP)—The world's coldest known spot—the American IGY station at the South Pole—has now reported a "record high temperature" for that spot.

The U. S. national committee for the International Geophysical Year announced that on Jan. 12, a temperature of 5.5 degrees above zero was recorded by scientists there. The previous recorded high was about five degrees below zero.

The same station previously had reported a record low of 102.1 degrees below zero, recorded on Sept. 17, 1957. This was the lowest temperature ever reported from any place in the world, IGY spokesmen said.

Guatemala Votes Sunday

GUATEMALA (AP)—The danger of a Communist comeback is an issue in the bitter campaign that comes to a head in the election of a Guatemalan president and Congress Sunday.

Fearing possible fighting when the results become known, provisional President Guillermo Flores Avendano says the army is ready with detailed plans to prevent disorders.

The election is Guatemala's second attempt to choose a president following the assassination of President Carlos Castillo Armas last July. Castillo Armas was the hero of the 1954 revolution that overthrew the administration of Jacobo Arbenz Guzman, who had let Guatemala be turned into a Communist beachhead in the western hemisphere.

Aussies' Costs Down

CANBERRA, Australia (AP)—Inflation may be riding rampant over much of the world but not in Australia.

The government announced today that the weekly cost of living fell a shilling—about 10 cents—during the last quarter of 1957.

This brought the total average fall in the country's six state capitals to two shillings during 1957.

Brett Gives . . .

keepsie and Newburgh are listed at $7,750.50 and $7,000, respectively, he said. Brett's present salary is $6,300 per year.

"A perfunctory look at the comparative figures would indicate that our department is faced with provision of coverage for area equal to Newburgh and Poughkeepsie combined.

"We are doing the job with less men, less officers and less paid houses and an even smaller budget, which is a feel, is the barest minimum.

"Any reduction in the budget which I have submitted would most certainly be a detriment to our fire fighting services, and a threat to the safety of residents in our city."

Cloudy, Light Snow Is 5-Day Forecast

ALBANY (AP)—The extended forecasts for New York State, prepared by the U. S. Weather Bureau, for the period from 7 p. m. today to 7 p. m. Wednesday:

Eastern New York — Mostly cloudy weather with moderate temperatures and occasional periods of light snow, confined chiefly to the west and north portions, will predominate the weather picture during the next five days, Friday night through Wednesday. Temperatures will average around seasonal levels with no major changes indicated. Snowfall will be light, with water content averaging less than one-quarter inch.

Western New York — A wintry period is expected, with temperatures averaging a few degrees below normal. ## Schoonmakers Attend Ithaca Florist Course

Mr. and Mrs. Donald L. Schoonmaker of Valley Gardens Inc., Accord, are among the 400 florists attending a three-day Florist Short Course at Cornell University.

The course is an annual event which is co-sponsored by the Floriculture Department of Cornell and the New York State Flower Growers.

Highlighting the discussions will be topics on poinsettia growing, rose production and disease control of chrysanthemums, snapdragons, carnations and many other crops. He will also have the opportunity to view the experimental and scientific work done by the students and the staff of the Department of Floriculture.

No Bomb Found

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP)—A bomb scare touched off a search of Central High School by a platoon of Arkansas national guardsmen last night, but no explosive was found and the soldiers were withdrawn.

Classes are not scheduled at the court-integrated school today. Teachers are grading mid-term examinations.

However, an Arkansas military district spokesman said the normal complement of federalized guardsmen—about 25 men—was on duty today as usual. The shift was changed recently to weekdays only from 8 a. m. to 5 p. m. Formerly the guardsmen were on duty at all times.

Smiling Singer Leaves

PARIS (AP)—Soprano Maria Callas, her famous temper held tightly in check, was flying to the United States today with nothing but smiles for her public.

The stormy prima donna will stop first in Chicago. After singing in Chicago she will go to the Metropolitan Opera in New York.

Miss Callas will be singing in the United States for the first time since she caused an uproar in Rome by walking out in the middle of Bellini's "Norma" on opening night. She said she had lost her voice, but some critics said belting had caused her to lose her temper.

Stopping over at Paris' Orly Airport, the singer told a noisy, jam-packed press conference:

"I hope to sing well in America. You know I like it there. The atmosphere is warm and the climate is good."

Consolidation Vote May Come Within 6 Weeks

Following a conference Thursday in Albany with Francis Griffin, chairman of the Bureau of Field Administrative Services, State Education Department, District Superintendent Clarence Johnson and representatives of the Greater Kingston Area Consolidation Committee, it was announced today there is a good possibility that a vote on the consolidation proposition may be held within the next six weeks.

Also attending the meeting were John Vines, chairman of the Consolidation Committee and Principal Reginald Russell of the Chambers School.

Griffin expressed his appreciation for the "positive action" which was taken towards settling the consolidation question at a recent Lake Katrine meeting.

It was indicated that in a week Griffin will submit to the State Legal Department a recommendation to initiate a commission order establishing the boundary for the Kingston Consolidated District.

The week's delay is to give the school officials of the Tillson-Bon-tecou area time to determine whether they desire to be included in the consolidation district.

The board of education of the Chamber School, Town of Ulster last night voted unanimously for consolidation.

After the state lays out the consolidation district a petition containing 750 names must be filed with the State Education Department requesting a vote.

Efforts are being made to secure these necessary petition signatures. Griffin indicated yesterday that the date for the vote would be set immediately after the necessary petitions are received. The date for the vote must be set for 30 days after receipt of the petition requesting the vote.

No difficulty is expected in securing the required signatures, William J. Burke, chairman of the Greater Kingston Area Consolidation Publicity Committee said.

Reuter Counsel

for appearance before the Reuter commission, as he was leaving the court house after appearing before the Ulster County Grand Jury inquiry, has been withdrawn.

Weissman is the alleged owner of the Petrof Company, which it has been charged by Worthington L. Rider, defeated Economy party candidate for mayor of Kingston, was a "dummy" company which allegedly sold merchandise to the city but Rider charged was never delivered.

Services of a subpoena on Weissman, a resident of the state of New Jersey, was made while he was under subpoena before the grand jury which is investigating the allegation.

Attacked by Attorneys

Hyman E. Mintz and Jacob A. Monticello attorneys, who represent Weissman, attacked the service on the grounds Weissman could not be served with a subpoena while still under the grand jury subpoena which had been served on Weissman at Monticello while he was in the state of New York.

Mintz and Ake, with Mintz of counsel, secured an order to show cause from Justice William Deckelman at Monticello, returnable today before Justice Taylor at Troy, to determine why the subpoena served on Weissman should not be quashed.

Both Mintz and Ake were unavailable today at their offices but a secretary stated that counsel to the Reuter Commission had asked that the motion to quash the subpoena be withdrawn and that counsel for Weissman had consented to withdrawal of the motion and the motion had been "dismissed."

Staff Is Away

There was no one at the Reuter office in the New York State Armory this morning and no comment could be secured.

In the grand jury investigation today Harry Thayer, Ellenville publisher and village trustee, again appeared before the body to tell more about an alleged "kickback" offered him by a road oil concern if he would take his business to that firm, which Thayer later said was not an Ulster County concern. It is understood a representative of the concern has appeared and denied the charge.

Also appearing before the grand jury probe today were two Kingston Department of Public Works employees.

Gaillard Father Again

PARIS (AP)—Premier Felix Gaillard became a father for the second time today. His wife gave birth to a daughter, who will be named Isabelle. The Gaillards have a year-old son, Philippe.

The 38-year-old Premier married the widow of financier Raymond Patenotre.

Farm Plan . . .

lost markets, accumulation of costly surpluses, even tighter restrictions on production and an adverse effect on farm income.

Today put great stress on administration proposals to give the department authority to set price supports for such basic crops as wheat, corn, cotton, rice, tobacco, peanuts and dairy products as low as 60 per cent of parity. The present minimum is 75 per cent of parity.

Parity is a standard for measuring farm prices declared by law to be fair to farmers in relation to their costs.

A number of key legislators have said that major proposal by the administration stands no chance of adoption.

Benson said existing law, permitting price supports on these crops at between 75 and 90 per cent of parity, is not flexible enough.

White Medicine Gives Sight to Navajo

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (AP)—A white medicine man has given a Navajo medicine man sight again.

Today the eye surgeon, Dr. Arthur Gray, flies Hasteen Bikini back to his beloved Monument Valley in southeast Utah.

"I will like flying if we go swift as the eagle," Bikini said of his impending first plane ride. The Navajo with gandana-covered braided hair says he is 87.

Dr. Gray encountered the blind medicine man last September when the surgeon landed his four-place plane on a tiny airstrip in Monument Valley to visit an old classmate from the College of Medical Evangelists in Los Angeles.

The classmate was supervising a Seventh-Day Adventist medical mission. A nurse told the surgeon about Bikini, who had helped to build the mission.

On the American scene, the wrong way to have peace is to buy it off a racketeer because it may prevent strife.

What business are you in, Mr. Reader,—steel, motors, chemicals, foods, planes? Well, what's your chance of running your plans when labor goons say "NO" unless you compromise with the principle of dictatorship by buying "protection," or granting an unearned raise to prevent a shutdown? Do you go along, but out of step, agreeing to something you know is wrong, rather than stand on what you know is right? That's how the American industrial "know-how" can be boxed up and buried for keeps.

In 1776, Americans believed anything was better than knuckling under to a bully. So the Thirteen Colonies told King George III to take his rough hands off their backs, and permit them to play their own game in their own way.

Today could be America's greatest hour if those who believe in a Free Economy shoulder their full share of responsibility to keep it so for all who wish to play ball, based on Constitutional rules and regulations.

There is no "they"; it's you and I; no "Washington" to decide. You are "Washington"; and on your actions, your courage and mine, will depend success or failure.

Neighbor, this is your country—otherwise it's a Socialistic State!

Teachers Urge Stress on Science In Lower Grades

"The omission of provisions for elementary education in the administration-sponsored education program outlined by Secretary Folsom is shocking," Dr. Sarah Lou Hammond, president of the Association for Childhood Education, told President Eisenhower in a letter made public recently.

Excerpts of the letter have been released by Mrs. Frieda Dingee, principal of School 7 and regional vice-president of the association.

"The new bill stressing mathematics and science overlooks the most important period of a child's life," Dr. Hammond said.

Influence Habits

"The teaching of mathematics begins in the early grades, as does scientific exploration. What is done educationally in the years from kindergarten through the elementary grades profoundly influences the habits and attitudes carried into adult life."

88,000 Membership

Dr. Hammond said she spoke on behalf of 88,000 teachers of elementary school children in the ### United States.

The Association for Childhood Education International, founded in 1892, is composed of 88,000 members. Approximately 85,000 of these live in the United States and are teachers of children two to twelve. Dr. Hammond said:

"It is in the elementary classes that the opportunity arises for developing the interests of potential scientists. But this fact is completely ignored in the administration's proposal for aid to education. Teachers of elementary school children are very much aware of this continuing national loss. This happens because children are in crowded classrooms with inadequate facilities, too few hours a day for their interests to be discovered and encouraged. We agree with the President that it is in the national interest to encourage potential scientists, but we can't afford the loss of future scientists because they are undiscovered in the elementary grades."

Members of the Association have asked for a conference with the President to discuss the formulation of practical legislation.

U. S. Technicians Crimping Red Plans in Latin America

Editor's Note — The United States is garnering a rich harvest of gratitude and good will through its technical foreign aid programs abroad. This final article of a series describes the projects under way in Latin America—and the crimp they put in economic infiltration attempts by the Kremlin.

By WILLIAM L. RYAN

AP Foreign News Analyst

Communist governments are ready and eager to send know-how teams to Latin America to compete with Americans there.

Moscow already has mounted a heavy propaganda offensive keyed to the advantages of Latin American economic cooperation with Communist bloc nations.

Thus far the Latin Americans seem unimpressed. U. S. aid programs and technicians alike are highly popular. Local leaders would consider it disastrous if the United States cut back either on the program or the U. S. personnel engaged in technical assistance.

Rundown on Results

In most prosperous areas of Latin America, the International Cooperation Administration program, successor to Point Four, is insignificant. But where sizable programs are under way, the response is enthusiastic. Here is a rundown:

Brazil: The program is considered important to this growing nation's development. It is relatively modest, costing about 4.4 million dollars for the current fiscal year. There are 135 U. S. technicians, working in agriculture, education, health, mineral development, civil aviation, railways and labor programs. Over-all administration accounts for 33.

Some Improvements

Technical assistance is popular, except among the Communists. The program has established a business and public administration school in Sao Paulo, with nine University of Michigan professors. It has brought airport improvements for Rio De Janeiro, Porto Alegre, and Sao Paulo, models for similar airport improvements throughout the country. It set up special schools to train Brazilians so they could pass know-how on to others.

Peru: The consensus here is that U. S. technical assistance is a boon. Peruvians prefer to call it cooperation, rather than assistance. The program has been hailed as highly successful.

Chile: The aid program has been showered with praise. Both government and public seem happy over it. Chile's projects include agricultural improvements, development of commerce, health, industrial development, scientific and economic research programs and public administration.

Mexico: Most of the ICA program concerns training Mexicans to do better jobs and to pass know-how on to others. It costs Uncle Sam about $700,000 a year, small in comparison with programs elsewhere.

All Types of Industry

The Mexico program concentrates on an industrial productivity center set up with U. S. help by the National Confederation of Industrial Chambers. The Confederation represents all types of Mexican industry.

Paraguay: The technical aid program bore much fruit in improving ancient farming methods in this small country. Machines and technicians from the United States helped Paraguayans save time and increase production. A relatively small ICA staff has aroused no resentment. In fact, Paraguayans seem proud that a world power like the United States takes such an interest.

Cuba: There are only 17 Americans working on technical aid programs in prosperous Cuba. It costs a maximum of $570,000 annually. Americans serve only in advisory capacities in farming, education, mining, public administration and labor-training programs. The technical aid is welcomed officially and by the public, but a cutback likely would have little effect, since Cubans already are beginning to take over.

Uruguay: There is only a small ICA staff in Uruguay. The Americans mingle easily with Uruguayans. But, said a source close to the government, "the departure of U. S. aid technicians would be deplorable" because of the important assistance they give in specialized fields.

KINGSTON, NEW YORK, JANUARY 17, 1958

CENTRAL HUDSON CONFIDENCE

This is the time of the year when economic experts tell us what they think will happen during the twelve-month period. As usual, expert opinion is varied.

After a rather troubled year, business was somewhat shaky at the end of 1957. Economic forecasters seem notably uncertain about what lies ahead. Most of them foresee a period of moderate decline, with no general pickup until at least mid-year. Even Secretary of Commerce Weeks, in the course of a generally optimistic report on the prospects for 1958, predicted a mild economic dip.

The Central Hudson Gas & Electric Corporation, however, is positive about its forecast for 1958 and backs it up with the largest construction budget in the company's history—$22,000,000 for 1958.

More than $13,000,000 of the budget will be spent in connection with Unit 3 now under construction at Danskammer Point Steam Station. Scheduled to go on the line in late 1959, this Unit will cost $26,500,000 and will have a net capability of 138,000 kilowatts.

Among the other large projects included in this year's construction program is the extension of a high pressure natural gas line from northwest Saugerties across Esopus Creek to Barclay Heights, a distance of about two miles, to supply increasing natural gas requirements in new homes in the area south of Saugerties.

Looking to the future, President Ernest R. Acker has announced that if the growth trend in the Central Hudson Valley continues as indicated in the company forecasts, it is likely that the company's construction for the five-year period 1958 through 1962 will involve expenditures in the neighborhood of $100,000,000.

Although a newly published book describes the Western pioneer gun fighters as "blowhards" and not very good shots, most of us are likely to take the old-timers just as television pictures them and let time erase their minor faults.

TO THE OPEN SEA

Viewing with alarm has a long record as a favorite indoor sport. This may be because, when it comes to alarm concerning ailments of society, viewing is much easier than doing.

This is not to say that viewing with alarm is unimportant. Indeed, it is the necessary prelude to reform. But there is such a temptation, once the criticism has been made, to assume that the problem has been dealt with. Not so. The next step is doing.

As an example, consider the frequently heard complaint that the rising generation of young people has turned its back on daring in favor of security. Like all generalizations, this one is peppered with exceptions. But there is truth in it; there is good reason to believe that among those now of college age the yen for a secure life—this usually stated in terms of a good, steady job and all that goes with it—greatly outweighs the desire to meet challenges with high endeavor.

Grappling with challenges is risky. The greater the challenge, the greater the risk. Yet society's advances always come from the taking of risks. When young people shun risk and have as their goal a comfortable security in a world already fashioned for them, progress is going to be limited.

Saying so is not enough. Young people must be taught, and with a passion to meet the need, that security alone is a paltry goal. They must be made to see that being over-concerned with security and a safe life is like sailing always in calm shore waters. The great voyages are made by men who turn to the open sea where the risks—and, if fortune smiles, the rewards—are great.

The country's latest population estimate is 173 million, more than half of them women. Who will dare dispute the claim that they now lead in both quality and quantity?

'These Days'

By GEORGE SOKOLSKY
THE "DAILY WORKER"

The closing of the "Daily Worker" and the resignation of John Gates from the Communist Party may give the impression that that party is dead. John Gates, editor of the "Daily Worker" and once the commissar of the Abraham Lincoln Brigade which fought in the Spanish Civil War, has been an important figure in the Communist Party. He had served a term in prison under the Smith Act.

Since the death of Stalin, there has been a split in the American Communist Party between those who accept Moscow's word absolutely and those who are critical of the Kremlin. Among the many who have resigned from the party under these circumstances has been Howard Fast, the writer, who in Soviet Russia has been acclaimed as the foremost American author of this generation.

The "Daily Worker" had been in existence 34 years. The reason given for the suspension of the publication is lack of financial support. This is only true to the extent that Soviet Russia would not support a newspaper edited by the Right Deviationist, John Gates. The American Communist Party has never been short of funds, such being provided either by rich Americans who wish to remake the world or by the Kremlin.

In February 1957, at the Sixteenth National Convention of the American Communist Party, a potent quarrel took place between the Kremlin crowd and the Right Wing who were attempting to follow Earl Browder's concept of American exceptionalism, that is, that economic and social conditions in the United States are different from other countries and that therefore the rules set up by the Kremlin cannot be applied to this country.

Soviet Russia requires each Communist Party in every country to be a branch of the Russian party and subservient to it. During World War II, because communications were difficult, Browder was able to establish a nationalistic Communist Party in the United States. Immediately after the war, Browder was expelled from the American party. However, American Communists had experienced a measure of freedom from Soviet dicta and some preferred it. Furthermore, as the cold war progressed, Russia tended to ignore the party and to depend more and more upon spies and agents whose job was not so much agitation and propaganda as it was, and is, corruption and sabotage.

Those who favor being subservient to Moscow under any circumstances, are led by William Z. Foster and Eugene Dennis who have long been party functionaries. Opposed to them is a group led by John Gates, editor of the "Daily Worker," who employed this party newspaper to advocate his point of view. Gates has held that Russian Communism, inconsistent, racist in the sense that it has become overtly anti-Semitic, violently anti-American, in fact, is forcing upon every member of the party an attitude of treason. The Gates faction sought to sell the medication, Marxism, in a more beautiful package, even one wrapped in the American flag. This sentence may sound as though I question the sincerity of Gates' motives; I do not. Many Communists have faced the proposition that they cannot submit to the Kremlin demand that they be robots, without thought or emotion.

In the August 1957 issue of the Soviet periodical "Kommunist," John Gates was identified by N. Ponomarev, member of the Central Committee of the Russian Communist Party, as a revisionist. Such a mention is equivalent as a warning of early excommunication.

In November 1957, representatives of the Soviet Communist Party and 11 other Communist controlled countries signed a joint declaration in Moscow pledging their support to Marxist-Leninist principles and denouncing revisionism as the principal present danger to the party. That cooked Gates' goose within the party. Either the American party had to become independent or throw Gates out. They threw Gates out.

The closing of the "Daily Worker" therefore was accomplished by the Kremlin with the object of proving who is the boss of the American Communist Party. Obviously, it is Nikita Khrushchev.

Earl Browder in his lectures at Rutgers University makes the point that the dogmatist is often hypnotized by the logic of the word, but that is not the sole explanation. If Soviet Russia loses the discipline over Communist Parties, it loses an effective arm. For it, it has to substitute espionage and sabotage corps. It is sound for the Kremlin to discipline those who dare, for any reason, to show any signs of independence. (Copyright, 1958, King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

Many Unknowingly Have Emphysema—Lung Disorder

BY EDWIN P. JORDAN, M.D.
Written for NEA Service

Apparently many people have never heard of a condition known as emphysema until they are told they have it by a physician or learn about it from a relative or friend.

This is a disorder of the lungs which is believed to be present in varying degrees in an extremely large number of people. Studies of the human body after death have shown its presence in about one person in 20.

Emphysema in mild form commonly does not cause any symptoms at all, and it is probably for this reason that so many people are unaware of its existence.

When it does cause symptoms shortness of breath is the most common. This difficulty with breathing is the result of loss of elasticity of the tissues in the lungs. If this elasticity is impaired in enough of the lung tissue it is easy to see why shortness of breath should result.

MANY EXTENSIVE studies have been made of emphysema and are continuing.

The disease results in most instances from chronic infection of the breathing passages, whether it be long continued bronchitis or some other condition. Chronic asthma or a chest deformity may also lead to emphysema. Also, it is probable that certain occupations present special hazards for the development of this disorder. Those whose work puts them in contact with poisonous dusts or who are engaged in work which carries increased risk of lung infections are particularly likely to develop emphysema.

Certainly, emphysema often comes from preventable causes. Hence it is important to eliminate insofar as possible the special dangers of occupation and to treat chronic lung infections as early and as effectively as possible before emphysema has become established.

IN SPITE OF preventive measures many people will continue to develop emphysema.

Treatment is complicated. A large number of drugs have been tried, aimed at improving the ventilation of the lungs with varying degrees of success. Some people with chronic emphysema seem to be considerably helped if they can spend the colder months of the year in a mild climate. There have also been some interesting reports in the medical literature involving the use of a breathing apparatus which results in intermittent pressure on the lungs. Special breathing exercises have been favored by some.

Some preparations which can be inhaled in finely divided form, aimed at attacking infection or dilating the bronchial tubes, have also been reported as having favorable effects for some victims.

Prevention, and obtaining early skilled advice, remain the most important aspects of emphysema for the patient.

A Close Look at the Near Future

Washington News

BY PETER EDSON
NEA Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON — (NEA) — Russian spunkies and missiles have pushed the U. S. civil rights controversy well into the background, insofar as the new session of Congress is concerned.

Moderates think this is a good thing. They are willing to let the situation cool off a little before taking any next steps.

They have noted with satisfaction that new Atty. Gen. William P. Rogers says he will have no additional rights legislation to offer at this session.

They are willing to let the newly created assistant attorney general for civil rights and the new Civil Rights Commission, created by last year's legislation, see what they can do.

Rep. Brooks Hays (D-Ark.)—who was a leader in trying to get the Little Rock high school integration fight settled last September—plans to introduce a resolution in the House. It would require the Civil Rights Commission to make a study of all civil rights cases and report to Congress.

There may be some question whether the Commission has authority to go into the subjects of the Hays proposal. Under the civil rights legislation as finally passed by Congress, the Commission is limited to questions of voting rights.

A SPRINKLING OF other bills dealing with aftermaths of the Little Rock case were introduced in the new Congress on opening day. They indicate the extreme positions of northern and southern congressmen on enforcement of civil rights cases.

Rep. Kenneth B. Keating (R-N. Y.) introduced a bill which would prohibit the use of National Guard troops to obstruct the enforcement of any federal law or court order.

Rep. Arthur Winstead (D-Miss.) introduced a bill which would limit the use of federal troops to enforce federal laws or court orders and a companion bill to prohibit calling the National Guard into federal service except in time of war or on request of a state.

Rep. John Dingell (D-Mich.) has proposed an amendment to restore Section III to the civil rights legislation. This would give the attorney general power to seek court injunctions for enforcing civil rights.

Rep. Adam Clayton Powell (D-N. Y.) wants to tack an anti-segregation amendment on all aid to education bills.

But none of these measures is expected to gain much headway in the new Congress.

HANGING OVER FROM the last session of Congress is a bill introduced by Sen. James O. Eastland (D-Miss.) reserving to the states exclusive rights to legislate on education and morals. Other bills introduced by Sen. Strom Thurmond (D-S.C.) and several southern representatives would limit Supreme Court jurisdiction on state education.

But there is no indication now that any of these bills will be pushed in the new session of Congress.

Returning congressmen say that it is remarkable how attitudes on civil rights have calmed down in the last few months.

In the final weeks of the last session of Congress, when civil rights legislation was being debated in the Senate, few people could discuss the subject rationally.

Then in September when the Little Rock incident was at its height, tempers on both sides flared beyond all control.

TODAY THERE is more restraint. One factor, according to Representative Hays, is a growing realization all through the south that the Little Rock incident hurt the United States internationally.

Another point of view reported by many ministers to Representative Hays in his capacity as president of the Southern Baptist Convention, is that some kind of an incident to dramatize school integration was inevitable.

It is now considered fortunate that it happened in Arkansas. Relatively moderate sentiment has prevailed there.

If it had happened in any of five other southern states, it would have meant the closing of public schools under state law. Through mass resistance, it might have resulted in worse violence.

Passage of time has cleared up one other aspect of the Little Rock incident. It is now recognized that the new federal civil rights legislation was no factor at all in what happened there—not even psychologically.

Dulles Seen Opposed Only To Fruitless 'Summit' Talk

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON—If the newspaper writers of Europe could have been present at the National Press Club today when Secretary of State John Foster Dulles answered a barrage of questions from a big gathering of reporters here, they would have learned more about the foreign policy of the United States than ever before. They would have had to revise their oft-repeated charges that Mr. Dulles is rigid and inflexible and unwilling really to see a "summit" conference held.

For Mr. Dulles said flatly that the United States wants such a conference but doesn't want it to end in disaster or illusion and hence that it seeks to make sure that the Soviet leaders seriously intend to negotiate instead of just playing a propaganda game.

Wants Proper Conditions
The Secretary told of the years of diplomatic conferences that have been held—and some still going on—with the Soviet representatives and of the broken pledges. He insisted that there could be a "summit" conference to "sanctify" agreements previously made by the foreign ministers. He pointed out, however, that when the foreign ministers or ambassadors negotiate, they do so by direction of the President or the head of state in every case. He added:

"President Eisenhower's letter to chairman Bulganin should dissipate once and for all any impression that the United States does not want to negotiate, or is afraid to negotiate with the Soviet rulers. The truth is quite the contrary. We do want a 'summit' meeting, provided the proper conditions obtain."

"We do not, however, want a 'summit' meeting which merely represents another episode in the 'cold war,' and which would be held under circumstances that would carry great peril to the free world."

"There are, I know, many who feel that the 'cold war' could be ended and the need for sacrificial effort removed by a stroke of a pen at the 'summit.' That is the kind of illusion that has plagued mankind for a long time. Actually peace is never achieved in that way, and nothing could be more folly for us than to act on the belief that all our danger could be ended by peaceful platitudes proclaimed from the 'summit' by heads of government."

Yet this is precisely the point of view being emphasized in many European newspapers which have been attacking Mr. Dulles as unwilling to negotiate. The American secretary of state is eager to negotiate, but he doesn't see any sense in bringing the heads of state together to give an appearance of peace which would discourage the taking of the defense measures deemed necessary against Communist imperialism.

World Undermine De Fenie
Mr. Dulles said it would be "the greatest triumph of Khrushchev's career if he could bring about the relaxation of military effort by the West merely by pronouncing platitudes of friendship and good will without any corresponding acts to assure such a purpose."

Mr. Dulles did not hesitate to answer explicitly the questions that were asked him about the policy he followed in the Suez dispute and his attitude about non-recognition of Red China. He declared, for instance, that America concurred in the British and French position about the Egyptian seizure of the Suez Canal but, with respect to America's protest against the military steps taken then, he believed he would recommend the same policy again if it occurred. He said it was a tragic affair and it was with a heavy heart that he took the steps he did. He said nothing would be gained now by reopening old wounds which have been healing.

Notes Red China Hostility
As for Red China, Mr. Dulles said that in theory there was no reason why some day recognition shouldn't be extended, but that the conditions America feels must prevail do not prevail today. He emphasized Red China's persistent hostility to American policy in the Far East.

As for American prestige abroad, Mr. Dulles feels it "stands higher than ever before with the governments of the free world countries," but he commented that public opinion in those countries "may perhaps have been somewhat misled." He added that the United States is "respected more than it has ever been before." He then remarked:

"There is a difference between being respected and being liked. We do not run the foreign policy of the United States with a view to winning a popularity contest and we have to do things which we know are not going to be popular. But we have not done in my opinion, anything for which we are not respected, and I prefer being respected to being liked."

Those are the words of a courageous statesman—not the words of a craven politician seeking public favor at the expense of the national interest. (Reproduction Rights Reserved)

AS PEGLER SEES IT

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

NEW YORK, Jan. 16—I present a flagrant example of learning impudence by the New York Times toward readers who may have innocent faith in that god of our idolatry, the press.

On Sunday, Jan. 12, the Times ran an exaggerated laudation of a political tract by Harry S. Ashmore, executive editor of the Arkansas Gazette, of Little Rock, published under the title of "An Epitaph for Dixie." For "Review" the Times chose Hocking Carter, who runs a small paper in Greenville, Miss., called the Democrat-Times. It is distinguished from a thousand other small-city papers only by Carter's impudence in mocking the sentiments, the social customs and the precious moral souvenirs of the old south. He is exceptional only when he presumes to abuse his professional betters, as in this essay where he speaks of James L. Kilpatrick of the Richmond News-Leader and Tom Waring of the Charleston News and Courier as "apostles of neo-secessionism." These are two of the best journalists in the country. Both are gentlemen and neither Ashmore nor Carter is fit to run their copy. Both have defended the Constitution against the wanton politics of the Supreme Court and neither has ever proposed "secession."

Arthur Hays Sulzberger, the publisher of the New York Times, came to journalism from the textile trade. His success was rapid after he married the boss' daughter, Miss Iphigene Ochs, in 1917. Sulzberger has collected many empty degrees, awards and citations and his yearning for "recognition" is a footnote phenomenon in the pell-mell career of the American press of his time.

Ashmore is a subsidized protégé of the Ford Foundation's mischievous venture against state rights in the segregation trouble. But, before getting into that deal, by Paul Hoffman's approval, when Hoffman was shoveling out the Foundation's millions, Ashmore campaigned for Governor Orval Faubus notwithstanding the fact that Faubus had been a student leader in a communist college at Mena, Ark.

John Wells, publisher of a new, and thus far, smaller, Little Rock paper, the Recorder, clouted Faubus and Ashmore with the truth of his matter for years. Ashmore belittled Faubus' implication in this notorious exploit and fought for him in politics until Faubus opposed "association," the southern term for "integration." On that they fell out. But Faubus is more anti-Negro than pro-Constitution, while Ashmore is pro-Negro and pro-Supreme Court. The Constitution figures little in their debate. To Wells, the issue was not one of race but strictly a Constitutional matter. And he still harps on the fact that Faubus was a student leader in a school condemned and closed by public authority as a Communist institution.

Ashmore is no better "writer" than Carter.

If the New York Times Sunday book section had intended to give an honest, impartial appraisal of a book it could have found a hundred better writers within a mile of the office. For that matter, Carter is not "literary" at all except by debatable courtesy. His sole distinction was a Pulitzer award for "editorial writing" ten years ago. This is the lowest category of the Pulitzer awards in daily journalism and it always goes to hacks whose attitude agrees with the bigotries of the Pulitzer jurors. H. L. Mencken, the greatest editorialist of his time, but an independent thinker, never got honorable mention from the Pulitzer board.

A few years ago, Look Magazine assigned Carter to interview me. He telephoned that he was in town, stating his mission, but though I made myself convenient I have never seen him yet. Nevertheless, Carter did his piece, probably a distillation of accumulated laudations from the Daily Worker and other Rooseveltian organs. One gets used to that.

In this case, the New York Times slipped over a plug for its own editorial "policy" on the pretext of reviewing a book in the literature department.

It was the lead-off essay with a whole front page and a jump of two additional columns on page 30. There was a big square picture of Ashmore, looking homespun, in the middle of the cover. It is a perfect example of Sulzberger's ideal of "interpretive" journalism.

BABSON on BUSINESS

By Roger W. Babson

BABSON PARK, Mass., Jan. 17—The big-paying, easy-to-get first job out of college is something we shall see less of this year. Company recruitment officers are saying that "this year for the first time in a long while we shall find plenty of June graduates around at prices we want to pay."

Babson studies of business activity have for some months now revealed a mild softening in both employment and payrolls. The cause of this slowdown in the cycle can be attributed to a number of things; among these are rising productivity through technological advances, automation, and declines in government spending.

The reason I am writing this article now instead of in the spring is to try to make both young people and their parents aware of this changed condition. If a college education teaches anything else, it should make individuals aware that survival of the fittest is a law of nature not likely to be repealed in a hurry by any congress, soviet, or college placement officer!

Unemployed College Graduates

You may be surprised to know that there are a number of last June's graduates who have not yet been able to find full-time employment of the kind they want. I learned from one large eastern university recently that better than 20 per cent of its last-June graduates had failed to find employment to their liking by Labor Day. Some are still working at part-time jobs; some have gone back to college for graduate work. While this figure may be somewhat atypical, it does, nevertheless, point up a trend.

Did you know, too, that a fair sprinkling of last June's graduates who did get jobs have already been "excessed" by their employers? This word "excess" is a lovely new personnel word which means "you are a nice enough individual; you have done well on the job; we would like to have you around, but we don't just need you any more." In short, he has been fired!

Start Job Hunting Now

One well-known college placement officer has stated that he expects the member of campus visits by companies this year to be cut by 50 per cent. I cannot agree with this; but, I do say there will be some shrinkage.

If, therefore, you expect to graduate from school or college this year, and want a job, start hunting now. Include these things in your preparation: (1) Make an appraisal of yourself. Know your vocational interests, strengths, and weaknesses. (2) Find out what kinds of jobs can best use your abilities, education, and experience; working with people, with numbers, or with materials and things? (3) Investigate your college library to find out what companies offer what kinds of jobs. (4) Go to a good financial source book and check specific companies for growth potential and product diversification.

Study Companies to Be Visited

(5) Have a general knowledge, before you go into the interview, of each company as well as of the industry it represents. (6) Be able to tell a prospective employer in a general way why you are interested in his particular industry and his company. (7) Set up a contact schedule for yourself, and send a resume a day to companies you think you would like to work for, asking for the privilege of an interview. (8) When interview time comes, be able to talk intelligently about yourself, indicating again, in a general way, the kinds of things you think you might be able to do on the job. (9) Send a follow-up letter after the interview.

Sure, this is a lot of work, and it takes a good deal of time! But the person who fails to take minimal steps of this sort is mentally lazy. Time spent now in getting ready for interviews is far better employed than time wasted in interviews from which you will obviously be "washed out" because of your lack of preparation. It is also far better than time spent later on a job for which you have neither the interest nor the aptitudes. Job hunting is serious business, more so this year than at any time since the war.

West led a low club. East's jack forced Joe's ace but now Joe was able to lead the ten of clubs and finesse against West's queen. "Well," smiled Joe. "I finally made one in spite of bad breaks." "You mean in spite of bad play," said North. "The hand was a cinch."

North was right. Joe had fought his way out of a trap that he had walked into at trick two. Joe should simply have let West's king of diamonds hold the

NEW YORK (P)—A man can go to a lawyer and return home without feeling he himself has become another Clarence Darrow.

A man can go to a physician and emerge without feeling that the visit had turned him into another Hippocrates or Dr. Paul Dudley White.

When why, pray tell me, can't a person go to a psychiatrist and leave without the conviction that he is now the reincarnation of Sigmund Freud?

I am not one to mock the benefits of psychoanalysis, real or fancied. If a fellow takes an hour off in the middle of the day to lie down on a couch and tell his troubles, he at least is taking a load off his feet—as well as his chest.

New-Born Authority

It may do a lot for his mind as well as rest his feet. But why, oh why indeed, does he feel that one trip to a psychiatrist's couch makes him, when he arises, an authority on my mind?

But it seems to. A trained psychoanalyst may have spent 15 years studying his art and still feel he has much to learn. But his patient, after a 60-minute verbal encouachment, is often convinced he now knows not only what is wrong with himself—but also what is wrong with all his friends.

Your amateur psychoanalyst seeks an incipient neurosis or budding psychosis in everything you do. He is interested only in the deeper aspects of your personality. The one thing he can't stand is the thought that you are well adjusted, and he is not.

How many people do you know like this today? I know at least a dozen, and it appears to me they are beginning to make social life and ordinary conversation, as we have known it in the past, more and more impossible.

Has Better Answer

If you meet one of these pests at a party and sneeze and murmur, "I must be catching a cold," he has a better answer: "No, it may be a sign of frustration. You feel neglected and overlooked. The sneeze is a subconscious attempt to gain attention and recognition, such as your mother gave you when you were an infant."

It is useless for you to argue that you are now of an age when you expect to stand on your own two feet and don't really expect anyone else to change you diaper for you. To him the smallest action has a deep hidden significance, one which you yourself aren't at all aware of.

Worries About Daughter

If your small daughter enters wearing a new dress and asks, "do I look pretty, daddy?", he sees her remark as a danger signal.

"Your daughter is developing a terrible case of extroverted narcissism," he warns. "You'd better do something about it now—before it's too late."

If you mull aloud over which of two restaurants to go to for lunch, you're coming down with schizophrenia. If it's raining and you question whether you'll be able to get a taxi, that's a sure sign you've got an inferiority complex, and he asks accusingly, "what are you really afraid of?" Maybe these mumbo-jumbo characters who've read page one of Freud and feel they know the whole book are entirely right. Maybe all the rest of us who haven't gone to a psychiatrist and got the word are sick...sick...sick...and don't know it.

His Boast Fails

Wetzel Executed
In Gas Chamber

PARCHMAN, Miss. (AP)—William Alvin Wetzel, New York badman who boasted he never would be executed, died in the gas chamber at the state penitentiary today.

The 33-year-old native of Seneca Falls, N. Y., maintained to the last that he was innocent of the fatal throat slashing of Edgar McGraw.

As the pajama-clad Wetzel stepped into the eight-sided gas chamber in the maximum security unit, he told the Rev. Kermit Canterbury of Indianapolis, "just tell the world I'm innocent."

No Hard Feelings
Wetzel shook hands with C. W. Watson of Jackson, the state executioner, and assured him, "I hold no hard feelings for you."

The condemned man entered the chamber at 12:15 a. m. (CST). It took five minutes to strap him into the chair and a minute later the deadly cyanide gas began its work. He was pronounced dead at 12:33 a. m.

LT. Gov. Carroll Gartin yesterday refused to grant clemency. Later, Justice Lee Hall of the State Supreme Court denied a petition for a writ of habeas corpus and a stay of execution. He said it would be a mockery of justice for him to interfere with the execution.

Brother in Prison
Wetzel's brother Frank was convicted last week of first degree murder in the death of a North Carolina state patrolman shot while Wetzel was at large after escaping from a mental institution at Willard, N. Y.

The brother had said he would try to free William from the death row at Parchman. He was captured in California and returned to North Carolina to face murder charges in the slaying of two state patrolmen.

Decline Is General

Thomas A. Dandrew, director, and associated with the American Hotels Corporation, gave a summary of hotel conditions throughout the area in which he reported there was a general decline in occupancy at hotels throughout the state, except for New York City. Mr. Dandrew is vice-president of the New York State Hotel Association and will become president in November of the State Association.

In a financial report for 1957 figures showed that revenue had declined approximately 3 per cent while operating expenses had increased 1.2 per cent, including a 4.8 per cent increase in wage cost.

Directors elected at the stockholders meeting last evening will meet later and elect officers for the ensuing year.

Maugham to Quit

Maugham, who has been living on the French Riviera for some years, said he is now finishing his "last and final book" of five essays titled "Point of View."

Accord Notes

By JULIUS LUDWIG
Colonial Children

Back in the early days of our history the small sons and daughters of the settlers shared fully in the dangers and hardships that beset their families from every side. On a June day in 1663 the uninvited villages of Wiltwick (Kingston) and Hurley were attacked by Indians, and in the general massacre babies were murdered and twenty-six children were among the captives carried off by the savages. One of them was Jochem, the four-year-old son of Hendrick Jochemsen Schoonmaker, who was visiting an uncle in Hurley at the time. The prisoners were more fortunate than most, for they were all returned in the autumn, but little Jochem, it is said, bore scars that marked him for life. The Indians had occasionally amused themselves by throwing burning coals and hot ashes on his small head.

Today, when we speed in our modern cars through the pleasant, peaceful towns of the Hudson Valley, it is well sometimes to turn our thoughts back to a time, some three hundred years ago, when life presented a far different picture, and when courage and endurance were the order of the day.

Accord, too, played its role in history. And here, on Route 209 (just a short drive from Kingston), stands the Accord Furniture & TV Mart, its ten large show windows featuring name brand furniture, lamps, rugs, mirrors and pictures. All at guaranteed lowest prices. Budget terms arranged. Free delivery.

NEW YORK (AP)—The stock market retreated in moderate trading early this afternoon.

Pivotal stocks dropped fractions to a point or more.

Steels, aircrafts, oils, rails and coppers were well below yesterday's closing prices while motors, airlines and building material issues were mixed.

The opening was active as the market continued its downward trend of late yesterday. Prices slipped a bit more then held fairly well at the lower levels.

Lukens Steel, Goodyear, Zenith and Douglas Aircraft were among the worst losers, dropping more than a point each.

Other losses of about a point were taken by U. S. Steel, General Dynamics, Kennecott, International Paper, Chesapeake & Ohio and Gulf Oil.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks at noon was down 90 cents to $158.90 with the industrials down $1.30, the rails down 90 cents and the utilities down 10 cents.

The firm employs eight telephone secretaries providing 24 hour service, 365 days of the year. These are in addition to the officers of the corporation. Harry E. Coale, president of the Kingston Telephone Answering Service, Inc., has had 30 years experience in this field.

Central Hudson Corp.

Central Hudson supplies electric power throughout a 2,500 square mile area in the Central Hudson Valley. This territory extends about 85 miles along the Hudson River and about 25 to 40 miles east and west from the river and includes the cities of Kingston, Newburgh, Poughkeepsie and Beacon. The company supplies natural gas to the cities and to numerous other communities in the area. The company has approximately 120,000 electric customers and about 41,000 gas customers. The population of the area served is approximately 350,000.

The area served contains many small diversified industries, fruit and dairy farms and a large number of summer resorts. Large industries, in recent years, have become increasingly important to the region's economic growth. The company's principal industrial customers are manufacturers of cement and other building products, business machines, machine and metal products, textiles, paper, and printed materials.

The company's largest electric generating facility, The Danskammer Point Steam Station near Newburgh, has a net capacity of 140,000 kilowatts. A new generating unit is being added which will approximately double the station's electric generating capacity. The Danskammer station, over the six-year period it has been in operation, has been consistently rated among the nation's most efficient steam electric generating stations.

For the past several years Central Hudson has been active in the utility industry's broad program to apply atomic energy to the generation of electric power and it is a member company of Power Reactor Development Co., which is building a large-scale atomic power reactor in Michigan.

Fessenden Shirt Co.

The Fessenden Shirt Company, Inc., was established in 1914 by E. E. Fessenden and first occupied space in the building at 139 Cornell Street, then known as the "Incubator Building." At that time Kingston was rapidly becoming known in the industry as a center of fine quality shirt manufacturing with standards of stitching equal to the best in the country.

The company soon required additional space for expansion and in 1919 purchased the four storied brick building at 9-11 Field Court from the H. S. Crispell Drug Company. After a complete renovation, machinery and equipment was moved to this location in 1920 and the company continues to occupy these premises, now specializing in the manufacture of men's sport shirts.

Production is maintained at an almost constant level throughout the year, employing 125-130 cutters, machine operators, examiners and supervisors. With a few exceptions, distribution is on a nationwide basis to the better department and men's furnishing stores.

CARACAS, Venezuela (AP)—Venezuela's new education minister has appealed to Caracas students to end their demonstrations against the regime of President Marcos Perez Jimenez.

The speech by Dr. Humberto Fernandez Moran over a nationwide radio hookup last night was taken as an indication of the government's concern over the student outbreaks.

The demonstrations have continued for four days. Five were reported yesterday.

Bridge Project
At Country Club

A $2000 rebuilding project is about to start at the Woodstock Country Club, where two bridges which were destroyed in the December flood will be replaced.

Club president, Lewis R. Wilson, estimates the cost of replacing the bridges at "more than $1800" and said it would cost heavily into the substantial balance with which the club completed operations in 1957.

Plans call for new bridges at the same locations as the old ones, but the new spans will be at least three feet higher, Wilson said. The club has had a long history of bridges being washed away and destroyed by floods in recent years.

The logs for the abutments were delivered a few days ago. The abutments on either end of the bridges will be re-inforced and strengthened and club officials believe the new spans will be able to withstand any shock and pressure of storms in the future.

The club president said that some members had suggested one major bridge project between the present spans but the proposal was rejected as unfeasible. The bridges now located between the clubhouse and the first tee and on the colorful ninth "water hole" help make Woodstock Country Club one of the most scenic courses in the area.

Moehle Speaker
At Oteora P-TA

John Moehle, supervising principal at Oteora Central School, and a panel of school administrators

tors will be the feature of an open forum at the Tuesday, Jan. 21, meeting of the Oteora Parent-Teachers Association. The meeting is scheduled at 8 p. m. in the school auditorium.

Moehle will speak on the proposed bond issue and building program and will welcome any questions from the floor after the discussion.

The administrative panel will include three Oteora Central educators: Ronald Vanni, elementary principal; William Deming, high school principal; and Paul Runge guidance director. Donald Baines, principal of the West Hurley school, will discuss the new building program in relation to the improved curriculum. All parents and interested persons in the area are urged to attend. The Oteora P-TA reminds parents and other citizens that it is their duty to become informed on such important school issues. Everyone is invited and refreshments will be served in the school cafeteria after the program.

Postal Carrier
Survey Started
For Woodstock

A postal survey designed to determine the feasibility of mail delivery by foot carrier in the village of Woodstock is now under way.

Postmaster Leon Carey, who is supervising the Woodstock end of the survey instituted by the United States Post Office Department, said it would also deal with the so-called mounted service in closely populated sections surrounding the village.

One purpose of the survey is to determine how many persons prefer home delivery should such service be inaugurated and if they would still maintain their Post Office box.

A petition has been placed at the mailing window at the Woodstock post office and Postmaster Carey urges all interested persons to sign it on their next visit to the local post office.

West Gives Final
Christmas Report

The Christmas Eve Program Committee collected $1,405.83 and spent nearly $1,300 for the 1957 program, leaving only a modest balance with which to start next year, Chairman William B. West Jr., reported at the executive meeting this week at the Woodstock school.

The entire total was raised through the letter appeal, the only fund-raising effort of the group, West said.

Reflecting the excellent work and scope of the committee's activity, West revealed that a total of 930 Christmas stockings were handed out by Santa Claus; 800 at the Christmas Eve party and 130 on Christmas Day to shut-ins.

More than 50 cheer baskets were presented to shut-ins and $214.11 was spent on food baskets for deserving families.

Items Listed
Expenses included $100 for the stockings, $201 for candy to fill them; $245 for the Cheer baskets; $30 for the big Christmas tree and a total of $507.14 for such operational items as electricity, printing, postage, insurance, gasoline, Christmas decoration awards and the essay prize contest.

An automatic time clock arrangement by Milton Combs, Grounds Chairman, which shut off the large Christmas tree in the village square every night, reduced the electric bill to about half of last year's costs, West reported.

The names of George Eichler, Bruce Reynolds and Charles King were added to those to whom thanks is due publicly for their efforts on behalf of the program.

The committee also extended a vote of thanks to Chairman West for his efforts and the activities were then adjourned until the middle of next October when plans for the 1958 program will be started at a mass meeting of all interested persons.

No State Money

perience delay in starting construction of the proposed Newburgh-Beacon span. The Associated Press said Gov. Harriman finds that the state has no available money to underwrite construction of the bridge.

When a budget report is given Jan. 27, the governor said, "you will see that no money is available for the state to underwrite construction of the bridge." The authority reported late last year that it could not finance the project without state or other assistance, and it sought legislation to make state aid possible.

Report on Vehicles

The four bridges last year clocked 7,558,655 vehicles. This was 476,848 more than the 1956 total.

The Mid-Hudson Bridge clocked 3,825,385, which was 242,051 under the 1956 total. The Bear Mountain span total was 1,512,571 against 1,470,857 in 1956, a gain of 2.83 per cent. The Rip Van Winkle, at Catskill, clocked 1,561,281, against 1,531,516, a gain of 1.94 per cent.

The Kingston bridge in 1958 will have its first full year of travel. It opened early last February.

The Newburgh-Beacon ferry, also operated by the authority, carried 485,203 vehicles in 1957 against 470,870 in 1956, a gain of 3.04 per cent.

Set New Musical
NEW YORK (AP)—Broadway's most famous team of musical comedy hit-makers, Richard Rodgers and Oscar Hammerstein II, have decided on "The Flower Drum Song" as their next enterprise. Based on a novel by C. Y. Lee, the project is planned for arrival in November. Joseph Fields is expected to collaborate on the libretto with Hammerstein. Rodgers-Hammerstein were last represented on Broadway with "Pipe Dream" two seasons ago.

Show Must Go On
PHILADELPHIA (AP)—The producer has to do the performing. That is what happened during the tryout here of a new musical comedy, "The Body Beautiful." Leading man Jack Lee, Warden came down with laryngitis just before curtain time. With no understudy available, Richard Kollmar, co-sponsor of the show and a former singer, took over the assignment and carried through without dropping a note.

Glancing Over TV Bill of Fare

By CHARLES MERCER
NEW YORK (AP)—"They're a dedicated people, a strange and wonderful breed of man. They'd never come home and work down at the corner. By comparison they make you yourself feel like a pretty shabby person."

A man named Lou Hazam was talking. The "strange and wonderful breed" he was discussing are American physicians—both missionaries and others—whom he met in obscure places on a round-the-world trip with a TV camera crew.

On TV Jan. 23
The television audience can meet some of these physicians and view their extraordinary work next Thursday (Jan. 23) when "March of Medicine" presents "M.D. International" on NBC-TV (10 p. m.).

With David Lowe, the producer-director of the program, and five technicians, Hazam visited Korea, Hong Kong, Burma, Nepal, Lebanon, Ethiopia and India. The 51-day, 34,000-mile world-circling expedition traveled by every means from airliner to foot. With and without interpreters they worked in 13 languages.

Hazam, a writer who lives in Silver Springs, Md., wrote and filmed in the Belgian Congo the excellent "Monganga" program for "March of Medicine" last year.

"I believe that American doctors are our greatest unofficial ambassadors abroad," he says. "To hundreds of thousands of people in far parts of the world the word 'American' means only one thing: a little man working in a little hospital who saves lives and brings health to the sick."

Not All Are Men
Not all these ambassadors are men, of course. Hazam recalled a small hospital operated by the Maryknoll Sisters in Pusan, Korea—"five or ten pristine little angels who run a clinic that is said to have the longest waiting line in the world." The gates of the clinic open at 8 a. m., but the line of patients begins to form about midnight.

The sisters told him about a gang of children organized to beg at Pusan port: "They're the property of a man called 'The Beggar King.' His gang has made him a very wealthy man. He sends them out to beg and in return gives them food and shelter. If they don't bring in a specified amount every day, they receive no food."

Wherever Hazam, Lowe and their cameramen went they found wonderful stories of humans living under stress. Their greatest problem was not in finding material but in trying to compress it into an hour of television.

Approves Power Pact

ALBANY (AP)—Gov. Harriman today approved a contract for supplying St. Lawrence project electricity to the municipal power plant of the village of Philadelphia, Jefferson County.

The agreement, which runs until June 30, 1965, provides for the sale of 800 kilowatts of firm power. Philadelphia has approximately 1,000 residents and its power system serves about 340 customers. Harriman estimated that their power costs would be cut 30 percent through the use of St. Lawrence power.

Independents Say They'll Do Dozen Films During '58

By BOB THOMAS
HOLLYWOOD (AP)—At a time when some major studios are planning few or no movies, a tough little band of independents named Hecht-Hill-Lancaster has announced 12 for 1958.

The firm consists of an acrobat turned actor, Burt Lancaster; his former agent, Harold Hecht, and James Hill, who started as an NBC usher. These hard-minded, hard-working creators have made a success in the film industry at a time when the business is shrinking. I dropped by their fancy Beverly Hills office to find out how they did it.

Harold Hecht, first-named in the company, operates from a luxurious office decorated with pre-Columbian art and original oils by Corot, Gris, Rouault and other greats. After displaying them fondly, he talked about the movie business.

Ready to Go
"I'm not saying we'll release 12 films in 1958," he explained, "but we've got that many projects ready to go. We're shooting 'Separate Tables' now, then we'll do a Burt Lancaster western. After that, we've got four others ready to go, back-to-back."

How have they been able to maintain a steady schedule while some major studios have been floundering?

"Maybe it's because we pick our subjects carefully," he said. "They are things that we earnestly believe in."

Special Campaigns
"And we believe that a film has to be properly merchandized, too. We plan a special campaign on each picture. We travel around the country to keep in touch with theater men and learn how to sell our pictures in today's market."

The H-H-L selling technique is a proven commodity. It worked wonders with "Marty." The company spent two or three times the cost of the picture to exploit it and won Oscars as well as a 3 million gross, about 10 times the film's cost.

Gross Is 16 Million
Another case, was "Trapeze." About a million dollars was spent on exploitation. Hecht reported the world-wide gross at 16 million. Of the 15 movies they have made, only one failed to turn a profit. "I guess we're entitled to one mistake," Hecht smiled rather grimly. "That was 'Sweet Smell of Success.' It will lose about $300,000."

"We went wrong on that one. We got into it before we had a finished script, and we just could not lick the story. It was a big disappointment, and we can't recoup much overseas. There is too much talk in it for foreign audiences."

"But we learned our lesson. Now I'm having each script analyzed by experts in the foreign field to test their appeal overseas. 'Run Silent, Run Deep' (Lancaster, Clark Gable) is to be a natural for foreign audiences. 'Separate Tables' is less so, but the stars (Lancaster, Deborah Kerr, Rita Hayworth, David Niven) can be expected to help."

Will Succeed Husband

ALBANY (AP)—Gov. Harriman today appointed Mrs. George L. Richardson of Syracuse to succeed her husband, who has died, on the advisory council of Oswego State Teachers College.

Harriman designated Mrs. Richardson for a term ending July 1, 1962. The post is unsalaried.

Mrs. Richardson, a school teacher, is a former resident of Oswego and taught in the schools there.

Former Resident Installed as Maine School President; Colby College Head Is Speaker

Approximately 4,000 persons were present in Moody Chapel of the Good Will Homes and Schools, Minckley, Me., on Sunday, Jan. 12, for the inauguration of Dr. Kenneth Lloyd Garrison as eighth president of the school.

Dr. Garrison, the son of F. Leslie Garrison of 154 Fair Street and the late Mrs. Leita Garrison, was chosen last October as president of the Hinckley school after serving 18 years in the ministry.

Served in Bay State

He completed his career in the ministry as pastor of the Baptist Church of Brookline, Mass. Dr. Garrison, in becoming the eighth president of Good Will Homes and Schools, succeeds Ellerton M. Jette, who is president of the C. F. Hathaway Company of Waterville, Me.

Dr. Julius Seelye Bixler, president of Colby College, Waterville, Me., delivered the inaugural address at Sunday's ceremonies. The invocation was given by the Rev. Malcolm MacDuffie, minister of the First Congregational Church of Waterville, Me., while the induction of the new president was made by Frank A. Besse, chairman of the board of directors of Good Will. The inaugural prayer was given by the Rev. Ralph Reynolds, minister of the First Baptist Church of Waterville, Me., of which Dr. Garrison is a former pastor.

Ellerton M. Jette, past president, spoke and the Rev. Mr. MacDuffie pronounced the benediction.

An informal reception followed for Dr. and Mrs. Garrison in the Good Will High School.

Committees arranging the inauguration were:

Carleton D. Brown, Waterville; Neal D. Bousfield, Bar Harbor; Charles L. Hildreth, Portland; Allison P. Howes and Mrs. A. P. Howes, Palmyra; Curtis M. Hutchins, Bangor; Ellerton M. Jette, Sebec; W. A. Kelley, Hinckley; Arthur R. Macdougall Jr., Bingham; Carleton P. Merrill, Skowhegan; Mrs. Ellsworth W. Millett, Waterville; Albert L. Moore, Augusta; Fred L. Nutter, Corinna; Reginald H. Sturtevant, Livermore Falls; Ray W. Tobey, Fairfield and Ralph S. Williams, Waterville.

Haines Falls Native

Dr. Garrison, a native of Haines Falls, began his ministry in 1939 when he served the First Welsh Baptist Church, Taylor, Pa., until 1943. From 1943 until 1948 he was pastor of the Hatboro Baptist Church, Hatboro, Pa., and from 1948 until 1952 served the First Baptist Church of Waterville, Me. He accepted a call to the historic Brookline Baptist Church in 1952 and remained there until his call to become president of the Good Will Home and Schools.

The Good Will Home and Schools which has its own elementary and high school facilities, comprises more than 3,000 acres of land on the Kennebec River. The school facilities are fully accredited by the Maine Department of Education.

Good Will itself is non-sectarian.

DR. KENNETH L. GARRISON

Dr. Garrison has a large farm including cattle and gardens which supplies the school. A swimming pool, tennis courts and a nine-hole golf course are among some of the recreational facilities available. More than 50 homes and other buildings are utilized in housing and educating the youth of the school.

Dr. Garrison, who is the brother of Mrs. Irwin J. Thomas, Sunset Park, is married to the former Miss Emily M. Rogers of Taylor, Pa., daughter of Mrs. Mary Rogers and the late William Rogers. The Garrisons have one child, a daughter, Emily Diane, who is now a student at Good Will School.

Social Season Opens With Capitol Dinner

WASHINGTON (AP) — A "white tie" dinner and champagne musical opened the 1958 White House social season last night.

The President and Mrs. Eisenhower entertained 84 guests at a state dinner in honor of Vice President Nixon and the Cabinet. After dinner, another 154 guests—less government officials and their wives—came for a music program and mid-evening refreshments, including champagne.

There were no toasts at the dinner, where Nixon and his wife, Pat, sat on either side of the Eisenhower table in the E-shaped dining room.

Sixteen senators, evenly split politically, and 12 representatives (eight Republicans and four Democrats) were among the dinner guests.

For three new Cabinet members—Secretary of Defense McElroy, Secretary of the Treasury Anderson and Atty. Gen. Rogers—it was the first such social event since they have been in office.

The White House emphasized a yellow and gold decor for the first of six state dinners which will be held over the next four weeks of the social season.

Mrs. Eisenhower, who received the guests in the blue room with the President, wore a yellow-gold, full-skirted taffeta gown with a scoop neckline and gold Mexican jewelry, a gift of the President of Mexico.

Author of "Children Are People" and "Etiquette," etc.

A HOSTESS' PREROGATIVE

Dear Mrs. Post: We have a married couple to dinner occasionally—sometimes alone and sometimes with other guests. Regardless of who is here this man will say, "How about some bridge?" as soon as we leave the dinner table. I feel he is very much out of order and that it is up to the host or hostess to plan the entertainment. We enjoy playing bridge but we also like to converse with our friends. Don't you think it is rude for a guest to suggest what to do unless he has been asked?

Answer: I agree you that it is the hostess and not a guest who should suggest playing cards.

An Exception to a Rule

Dear Mrs. Post: I would appreciate it if you would settle a disagreement my boy friend and I have been having. He says that he read an article by you in which you said it was improper and not in good taste to say "excuse me" after burping because it only draws attention to the person. He says you stated that it is better just to say nothing and act like it hadn't occurred. I think he is mistaken about this and can't believe that you have said any such thing. I think it very ill-bred not to say "excuse me" after committing this offense.

Answer: One should make every effort not to burp, or at least to stifle the sound, but if in spite of all one does occur, it is best not to call further attention to it by saying "excuse me."

Concerning Table Manners

Dear Mrs. Post: When dining in a restaurant where bread and butter plates are put at each place, is it proper to dip the edge of a cracker into the butter instead of using the butter knife?

Answer: While this is not strictly proper, it is not a habit for which one should be criticized.

Would you like an attractive table for your next dinner party? Mrs. Post's booklet No. 504, "Etiquette of Table Setting," describes table settings, decorations and many other details. Mrs. Post is sorry she cannot answer personal mail. To obtain a copy send 25 cents in coin to Dept. EP, c/o The Freeman, P.O. Box 99, Station G, New York 19, N. Y.

Veteran 'Tough Guy' Actor, Designer Wed

WASHINGTON (AP) — Veteran actor Edward G. Robinson was married yesterday to New York dress designer Jane Adler in a justice of the peace ceremony in nearby Arlington, Va.

Robinson, appearing in a stage production here, disclosed the marriage—his second—in a backstage interview last night. He gave his age as 64, and his bride's as 38.

The short, cigar-smoking actor, who frequently portrays the "tough guy," is starring in "Middle of the Night," a play dealing with the marriage of a man to a much younger woman. The play ran for 485 performances on Broadway before going on the road.

His bride is associated with the production.

Robinson's first marriage, to Gladys Cassell of New York City, ended in divorce in 1956 after 29 years. The first Mrs. Robinson was an actress whose professional name was Gladys Lloyd.

Slutsky in Group Proposing Change In Tax Structure

An organization which is against the federal government levying taxes at the expense of localities, and which will oppose Governor Averell Harriman's proposed $200 million public housing bond issue, has elected an Ulster County resident to its board of trustees.

Slutsky Is Trustee

The Citizens Public Expenditure Survey, a statewide tax research organization, today announced that Ben J. Slutsky of Ellenville had been elected a trustee. He owns the Nevele Country Club there.

Garth A. Shoemaker, executive vice president of the Hygeia Refrigerating Company, Elmira, was re-elected president of the Expenditure Survey and Norman J. Gould of Falls, president of the Ulster County Public Housing Bond Issue, has been re-elected chairman of the board. Another new member elected to the organization's board of trustees this year was Roger B. Prescott Jr., president of the R. Prescott & Son furniture manufacturing firm of Keeseville.

Cites Tax Hardships

In a joint statement, the board called for a federal tax structure that will leave state and local governments sufficient areas of taxation and taxpaying capacity to enable them to finance their needs. The board declared that "the federal government has pre-empted and usurped, at the expense of local government, both the areas of tax resources and the taxpaying capacity of those resources."

A proposed $200 million public housing bond issue which Governor Harriman has asked the Legislature to submit to the voters next November will be opposed, it was announced in the policy statement. "Tax exemptions granted the projects which this bond issue would finance," the board declared, "would extend over a period of 50 years and total hundreds of millions of dollars in property taxes. Those taxes that the projects would escape would have to be made up by property owners who pay their taxes."

Other Officers

Other officers re-elected at the meeting were Vice Chairman George E. Knowlton Jr. of Binghamton, president of the Binghamton Laundry Co.; Vice Chairman Charles L. Dickinson of Ithaca, agricultural business consultant to the Graduate School of Business and Public Administration, Cornell University; Treasurer George W. Brooks of Norwich, vice president of the Norwich National Bank and Trust Co. and Executive Vice president Walter Howe of Albany.

Shows Gunmen Money To Protect Mother

SANTA ROSA, Calif. (AP)—A 7-year-old boy went into action when two gunmen dragged his mother from a car yesterday and demanded her purse.

As the gunman twisted the arm of Mrs. Constance Kohlshack of San Francisco, her son, Theodore, kicked the man's shins. The gunman brushed the boy aside, Theodore kept kicking.

Finally Theodore told the gunmen if he would let his mother go he'd tell them where the money was. He showed them a wallet in a shopping bag.

So the gunmen departed with $125.

Files $52.06 Claim Over Snow, Anguish

PROVIDENCE, R. I. (AP)—A self-styled "dissatisfied taxpayer," Dante A. Mollo, went before the City Council last night with a complaint about last week's snow-storm.

He said he left his home the morning of Jan. 10 "in the best of spirits—but within a few minutes my good spirits had changed to despair."

The street had not been plowed and it took him an hour to get out, he said.

Mollo filed a claim for $52.06—of which $2.08 was an hour's lost pay and $50 for "mental anguish." The council gave the matter to a committee for consideration.

Three Road Games Test Chevrolet Flag Hopes

Middletown Royals First Stop Sunday

The road is where pennants are won and three consecutive road tests will determine the validity of Byrnes Chevrolet's designs on the Hudson Valley Basketball League pennant.

The extended safari to hostile hardwoods starts against the Middletown Royals Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock. Coach Red Murray's cagers whipped the Royals in Kingston, 80-66, in their first meeting.

Monday night a stop is scheduled at Stewart Field where the Panthers are primed to avenge the 88-58 drubbing they absorbed here last Monday.

Fishkill Real Threat
Perhaps the biggest test of the season is slated next Thursday against Van Voorhis Lumber of Fishkill at the Wappingers Central School arena. Fishkill is in second place with a 2-1 record, including a decisive rout of the Pine Plains Bombardiers.

The Bombardiers are scheduled to return to Kingston on Sunday, Jan. 26, for their second appearance in Kingston and the first home game for the Chevies in nearly two weeks.

Koenig Top Scorer
Frank (Yip) Koenig has scored 75 points for a 15-point average to pace the individual scoring. The runnerup totals indicate the great scoring balance of the club, a trademark through its first five victories.

Coach John (Buddy) Smith of Saugerties High is runnerup with 61 points and Big Bill Knott, the ex-Siena College ace, ranks third with 53 and has scored 15 points on three different occasions in three periods of play.

New Snowfall Helps Hard Pressed Owners

ALBANY (AP)—New York State ski resort operators hope this week's snowfall can help them recoup before spring from a barren skiing season.

In response to an Associated Press survey, winter sports centers said that before this week this had been the worst skiing season in many years.

Only centers with equipment for making artificial snow had a business comparable with last year.

Until this week, only one weekend of really good skiing had been available on slopes depending on natural snow.

Resort operators usually figure on a 100-day season. About half of it had gone by previous to this week's storms.

Yankees Think Deron Johnson Could Be New Mickey Mantle

By JOE REICHLER
NEW YORK (AP)—The New York Yankees, ever aware of the danger of over-publicity, shudder every time some one mentions the name of Deron Johnson. Privately, however, they believe the 20-year-old outfielder has the potential to become another Mickey Mantle.

Johnson is not even listed on the Yankee roster but the strapping 6-2, 220-pound right-handed slugger who made a remarkable showing at Binghamton last year will receive a thorough inspection by the Yankee brass during spring training. The records show 26 home runs, a .310 average, 103 RBIs and other impressive data for his season in the Eastern League, in which he was the outstanding player.

Manager Casey Stengel says that Johnson is not being counted on for 1958. He is on the Denver roster. But that's what he said seven years ago about Mantle, a kid just out of the Western Assn. An outfield newcomer given a great chance to make the parent club is Norm Siebern, batting champion of the American Assn. with a .349 average, 45 doubles, 118 runs batted in and 24 home runs.

Zeke Bella Touted
Zeke Bella, another outfield hopeful, spent the final month of the 1957 season with the Yankees after having hit .317 with Denver.

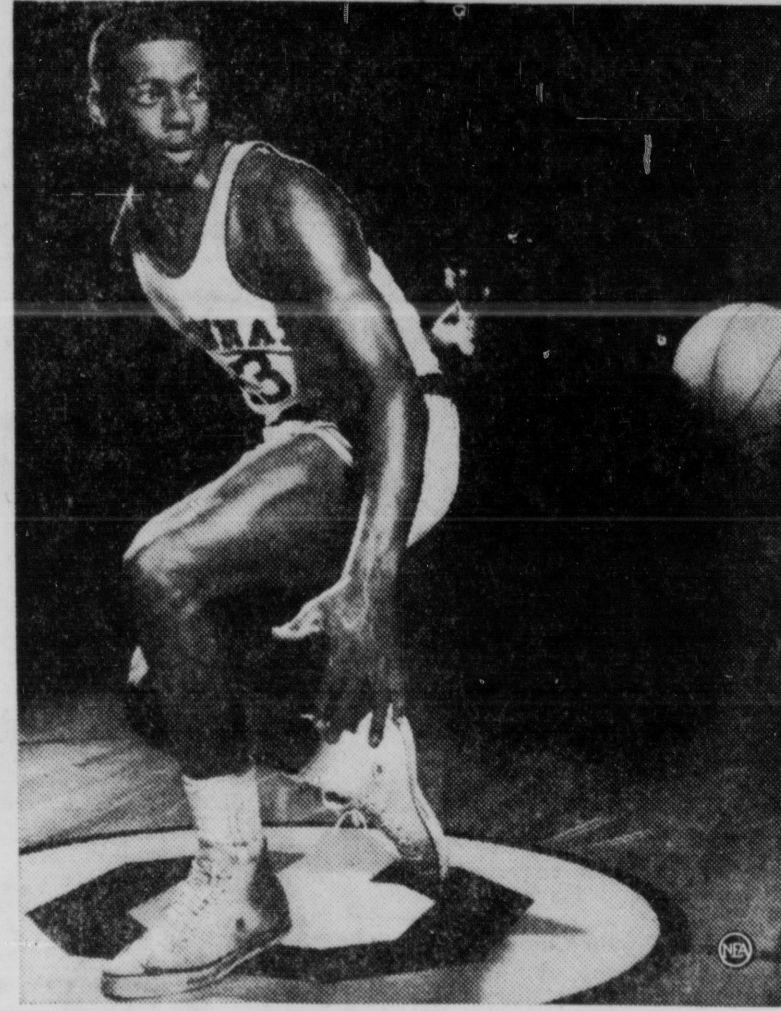

In Johnny Blanchard, 210 with Denver including 18 home runs and 86 RBIs, scouts say the Yankees have the best catcher in the minors. Infield hopefuls include first baseman Merv Thronberry, Denver, with a poor average of .250, but impressive figures of 124 runs batted in and 40 home runs; John Jacuik (pronounced Yashki) .320 with Richmond, and Frank Leja, with a slugging record of 22 home runs and 117 RBIs with Binghamton but a weak .239 average.

The Yankee farm organization is not very rich in pitching material. The list of fresh mound material includes Jim Coates, who fanned 163 in 224 innings for Richmond while posting a 14-11 slate with a fine 2.65 earned run average.

Ed Dick, 21-year-old southpaw who posted an 18-9 record and a 2.66 ERA at Binghamton is regarded as a year or two away.

Hersh Accepts Pact
MILWAUKEE, Jan. 16 (AP)—Earl Hersh, a left-handed hitting outfielder-first baseman, returned his signed 1958 contract to the Milwaukee Braves today. Hersh, who had a brief trial with the Braves in 1956, batted .269 for Wichita, Kan., in the Class AAA American Association last season. He hit 26 homers and drove in 84 runs.

Flotsam and Jetsam:

Dick Bezemer of Kingston scored 13 points as the Rollins College Tars dropped a 71-90 decision to Miami University's Hurricanes. Dick had a 27-point effort, his best of the season, against Kings University the week before. . . . Al Bush, lanky freshman court star, is currently leading the Onondaga State Teachers Dragons with 115 points in eight games for a 14.4 average. Close behind Bush is Kingston's Bob Bondar with an average of 12.3. Bondar, the team captain, also has played in eight contests. . . . Gary Holoway, the 6-2 junior who has appeared in the Kingston Basketball Tournament, is leading Albany State Teachers cagers with 22.1 average per game. Holoway, who hails from Saranac Lake, scored State's all-time individual high of 497 points in the 1955-56 season. He is also a tremendous rebounder with 15.8 average per game.

Of Men and Mice:

The PAL and Junior Chamber of Commerce of Poughkeepsie are co-sponsoring a Golden Gloves boxing tournament in the Bridge City on Feb. 14-15. . . . Sam Anzalone pens that Bullet Bob Hansen, the one-time Central Valley High School pitching sensation, is headed for another 30-months Air Force tour in Panama. . . . Ken Venturi has been named golf's Rookie of the Year for 1957 by Golf Digest. . . . Venturi first gained prominence when he led the Masters for three rounds in 1956, when he was still an amateur, only to blow an 8-stroke lead and lose to Jackie Burke on the last day. That was the day the Masters schedule committee withdrew Byron Nelson as Venturi's partner on the grounds Nelson might give tips to Ken, an old student of his. . . . Patty Berg won her first major golf championship in 1937, when she annexed the Titleholders' trophy. Now, 20 years later, she is still winning national golf honors. The sturdy 39-year-old veteran is the Performance Average Champion of the Ladies' Professional Golf Association for the third straight year. Her big wins in 1957 were the All-American and the World championships at Chicago's Tam O' Shanter carnival.

The Eleventh Frame:

A tip of the hat to Prospect Dairies for 3-0 sweep over Channel Master on the Ellenville lanes, a rare accomplishment for local squads. . . . Jones Dairy has a fine winning tradition in the Hudson Valley League and Ad Jones is the greatest bowling sponsor this area has ever known. And it wasn't his fault that the Dairyman pulled a bush league trick in not reporting their recent 3-0 pasting by Dutchess Recreation in a head-to-head meeting of the HVBL powers on the Kingston lanes. This was the match in which Dick Rhea, the league's high average kegler at 200, hit a measly 740. Not worth reporting, maybe.

DON'T MAKE 'EM THAT BIG: The next time anybody wants Bronko Nagurski at a formal party he better alert a tailor first. Nagurski, the all-time football player, arrived at the super-formal Touchdown Club dinner in Washington as one of the few in attendance without a boiled shirt. As the assembled politicians and bigwigs were to quickly realize, he had a good excuse. Seems the local tuxedo caterer couldn't fit Bronko's 22 1/2 neck with a dress shirt. The best he could offer was a tedious job of sewing two shirts together. "I could have done the job," the tailor said, "but we didn't have the time."

Davis Cup Brass Points Up Need for More Barry McKays

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP)—The kid around the corner—and thousands like him across the nation—holds the long range answer to America's return to international tennis supremacy.

That is the opinion of two of the top bosses of U. S. tennis who are here for the annual U. S. Lawn Tennis Assn. convention. The USLTA president, Renville McKay of New York, and president-elect Victor Denny of Seattle agreed that one of the most important USLTA functions today is encouraging youngsters to take up the game.

Although the United States lost to Australia in the Davis Cup Challenge Round last month for the third straight year, McKay and Denny expressed optimism for the future.

McMann Encouraged
"Barry McKay's fine showing in Australia definitely was a shot in the arm for American tennis," said McMann. "It gives us reason to look ahead to next time optimistically and we think it will help us in our campaign to interest more people in the game."

McKay, a young college student from Dayton, Ohio, captured one of the two singles matches the U. S. team won. Veteran Vic Seixas took the other.

McKay and Ron Holmberg, another member of the 1957 team, head the list of younger candidates for the 1958 Davis Cup squad. Others in that group mentioned by Denny include Mike Green, Myron Frank, Bill Quillen, Jerry Moss, Jack Frost and Whitney Reed.

Proof of Versatility

Dayton Abandons Possession Ball to Beat Oklahoma City

By DON WEISS
The Associated Press
Fast or slow, power or finesse, Tom Blackburn's University of Dayton basketball teams have that winning touch.

Blackburn, the silver-haired strategist whose teams rolled up a 217-83 record over the last decade, was handed a squad this year short on capable big men but long on speed and adaptability.

It has meant a different style of play for the Flyers, but they are winning just the same and at an even faster pace than before. Dayton's record was boosted to 12-2 last night with a 75-60 victory over Oklahoma City. This time the Flyers, playing possession-type basketball most of the season, did it with a fast break.

Change in Tactics
Blackburn junked ball control after seven minutes of play and the teams tied 12-12. The result was a 33-9 spurt that whipped the Flyers into a 45-21 halftime lead. The closest Oklahoma City, led by 6-10 Hub Reed's 35 points, got after that was 12 points in the closing minutes.

Joe Hobbs set a University of Florida scoring record with 38 points in a 75-70 victory over Miami (Fla.) and Texas, winning only one previous game, upset Texas Christian 73-69 in the Southwest Conference in other features of a slim program.

The scoringest team in the land—West Virginia Tech—was at it again, routing Glenville of West Virginia 127-80 to protect its 100-point a game average. Tech, national small college scoring champ the last three seasons, entered the game with a 101.2 average.

Johnson Meets Bert Whitehurst In Heavy Brawl

SYRACUSE (AP)—Harold Johnson, a man leery of oranges, battles Bert Whitehurst tonight in a TV heavyweight brawl.

Johnson, 29-year-old veteran slugger from Manayunk, Pa., won a split decision over Whitehurst in a previous match.

Tonight's 10-round performance will be televised and broadcast (NBC TV-radio, 10 p. m.).

Johnson is remembered by many viewers for an incident in a televised fight two years ago when he failed to answer the third-round bell after biting into a doped orange in Philadelphia. An investigation by the Pennsylvania State Athletic Commission cleared him of complicity.

Was Also Investigated

The 26-year-old Whitehurst, from Baltimore, has also been the subject of official investigation. In Hartford, Conn., last year he lost a split decision to Wayne Bethea of New York. The decision drew boos from the ringside crowd and prompted a special session by the Connecticut Board, which upheld Bethea.

Johnson is a classic-style fighter who has scored 56 victories in 64 fights over 11 years. Among his 25 knockout victims is Light Heavyweight Champion Archie Moore. In a championship bout two years ago Moore retaliated by knocking out Johnson, but only after Johnson had amassed an impressive number of points in the first 14 rounds. The Pennsylvania slugger remains the leading contender for Moore's crown.

Whitehurst has a 24-11-2 record and has dropped 12 of his opponents.

In the weigh-ins today, Johnson was expected to hit 178, Whitehurst 194.

Scoring will be on a round basis plus a point system to help avoid a draw.

Wings Respond To Abel Touch

By The Associated Press
Long-slumping Detroit suddenly has become the hottest club in the National Hockey League under new Coach Sid Abel, who as a player ended a lean six years for the Red Wings by triggering their drive to the Stanley Cup title in 1950.

The Wings, behind Alex Delvecchio's two goals, held onto their newfound second place berth last night with a 3-2 victory over the Chicago Black Hawks. It was their fifth consecutive victory since Abel officially replaced Jimmy Skinner as boss of a fifth-place club Jan. 5.

The Montreal Canadiens had no trouble retaining their first place bubble last night, however, clobbering Toronto 5-2 for their third victory in the last four games. They lead Detroit by 18 points.

The New York Rangers stayed a point back of Detroit with a 3-2 decision over Boston—their first victory in nine games.

Lubanski Tops Early Shooting

MINNEAPOLIS (AP)—It was Eddie Lubanski of Detroit all the way in the first day of the all-star bowling tournament finals.

The hefty 28-year-old beer salesman set a record yesterday and then proceeded to break it a few hours later. Lubanski's record consisted of three straight four-game series of 900 or more in the first three squads of the day.

As if that weren't enough, he came up with a 910 performance in the fourth and final performance to blot his average for 16 games to 230-plus in the fourth and final round of the day.

Lubanski, of course, was the leader after yesterday's firing had been completed with a Petersen point total of 84-38.

Don Carter, the defending champion from St. Louis, placed second late in the day after cracking out a tremendous 286-213-253-968 series, the best set Thursday. Marion Turash, the spunky Brooklyn, N. Y., secretary, led the ladies through Thursday's four squads and was on top at day's end with 37-13 points.

Labine Signs

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Clem Labine signed his 1958 contract with the Los Angeles Dodgers today. Vice President E. J. (Buzzy) Bavasi did not disclose the terms, but called the right-handed relief ace, "one of the highest salaried pitchers in baseball."

Labine appeared in 58 games for the Dodgers last season and might have broken his club record of 62 had he not suffered a rib injury in September.

Curtice New GridCoach at Stanford U.

STANFORD, Calif. (AP)—Stanford fans, who have grown accustomed to hearing their football coach predict victory, probably won't have to change the habit.

Cactus Jack Curtice, who moves from the University of Utah to Stanford March 1, is just as likely as not to pick his own team to win, contrary to coach custom.

Curtice, 50, and Stanford came to agreement formally yesterday, as expected, that he would be the head football coach for five years.

Salary terms weren't divulged but sources in Salt Lake City placed them at $17,000 annually for coaching football and $2,000 for leadership at a summer boys' camp. That's $39,000 for the five years.

Curtice succeeds popular Chuck Taylor, noted for predicting Stanford would win, even though it might be the underdog. And often the Taylor teams did win.

Geneva Seeks Franchise In NY-P League

GENEVA (AP)—Geneva may become the new home of a Class D New York-Pennsylvania League baseball team.

The common council last night agreed to make a ball park available—rent free for one year—for use by the Hornell club.

The city offered Shuron Park to Earl Johnson of Buffalo, the club's chief stockholder who has been casting about for a new site.

After the council's action, League President Vince McNamara announced in Buffalo that a decision to move the Hornell franchise here would be made soon after he received application from Johnson for the move.

Switching the franchise would give Geneva its first ball club since 1951, the year the Geneva Robins, members of the defunct border league who used Shuron Park, folded.

Pearson Swamps Foe in Canada, May Seek Vote

OTTAWA (AP)—Lester B. Pearson, newly elected leader of Canada's Liberal party, is expected to begin consultations immediately with other top Liberals on the question of when and how to force a new election.

The opposition party's national convention chose the 60-year-old career diplomat as its new leader last night in a resounding victory over former Health Minister Paul Martin. Pearson succeeds former Prime Minister Louis St. Laurent, quitting because of his 75 years, and will become prime minister if the Liberals win the next election.

Never in Doubt

The result of the party ballot was never in doubt. The vote was 1,074-305.

In his acceptance speech Pearson, former secretary and Nobel peace prize winner this year, pledged himself to lead a "renewed and strengthened" Liberal party back into office soon. But he gave no hint of when a general election might be expected.

Possibility of an election stems from the inconclusive result of the last nationwide vote. The Conservatives led by John Diefenbaker won the largest group of seats in the 265-member House of Commons but got only 113 seats, missing a majority by 20.

Need Minors' Aid

Diefenbaker formed a government and became prime minister after the third and fourth parties, the Socialist CCF and the Social Credit faction, gave the Conservatives the support of their combined 44 votes. The Liberals, with only 106 seats, must pick up considerable support from the minor parties to bring down the government by a vote in Commons.

Three States Join FFACropProgram

Future Farmers of American in three states have been invited to help show that recommended crop practices will pay off for farmers with bigger and better crops. They will participate in the FFA Crop Demonstration Program for 1958 in New York, New Jersey, and northern Pennsylvania.

Invitations went to 330 FFA Chapters in New York, 40 chapters in New Jersey.

Nearly one-half the New York chapters and more than one-third the New Jersey chapters participated last year. Originated for New York, the program is six years old. New Jersey will take part for the fifth year, and the pilot program conducted for two years in northern Pennsylvania may be expanded this year.

Sponsored by Cooperative GLF Exchange, Ithaca, and GLF service agencies, members of each chapter entered work together on an acre of land. Members plan, plant, and harvest, with traditional and college-recommended methods exhibited side by side. Demonstrations in previous years have shown benefits of new seed varieties, fertilization, chemical weed and pest control, and the values of soil analysis.

Daring Pharmacist Fools Thug But Good

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—"This is a holdup," said the man with a gun to Aram Ojakian, 45, proprietor of a pharmacy last night.

"You don't want to hold me up, there's a cop outside," Ojakian countered.

"Give me your money," grunted the man, showing the gun into Ojakian's midriff.

"Come I'll show you the cop," insisted Ojakian.

They walked to the front of the store.

"There's no cop there," said the gunman angrily.

Ojakian lunged, grabbed the gun and started to beat the man.

"I'd have shot him," Ojakian told police, "but it was a toy pistol."

More Ill Than Drunk: Sarah

MALIBU, Calif. (AP)—Actress Sarah Churchill, head high and fighting to hold back the tears, pleaded guilty to a drunk charge, but explained:

"I was more ill than drunk."

The 44-year-old actress, the daughter of Britain's Sir Winston Churchill, was fined $50 yesterday in Malibu Justice Court.

Pleads Guilty
Her gloves hands gripped the back of a chair as she faced Judge Charles H. Woodmansee and answered "I plead guilty to the charge."

Given permission to make a statement, she continued: "I was more ill than drunk. I was alone in the beach house where I had gone to learn my lines for a television show."

"I have been under some strain these last months. I fully realize that anyone might have misunderstood the situation."

"I deeply regret any inconvenience I may have caused. . . . The pain to myself and those I love is self-evident."

Judge Woodmansee said her attitude was commendable, but added: "You are the daughter of the world's greatest living statesman, but we must place the case in its proper perspective."

He said he would treat her the same as anyone else who came before him on the same charge. He then fined her $50 or 10 days in jail.

Miss Churchill was arrested last Monday by sheriff's deputies who went to her rented beach cottage in response to complaints that she had been using profanity over the telephone.

Upset Over Suicide
Deputies said they tried to calm her, but that she jumped into their car and refused to get out. Miss Churchill spent five hours in county jail before her release.

Friends say she has been upset over the suicide of her husband, society photographer Anthony Beauchamp, in London last August. They had been estranged.

Bemoan Light Fall

HOUGHTON, Mich. (AP)—Houghton has had only a little more than five feet of snow this winter and longtime residents say that isn't right.

Normally Houghton, situated on the Keweenaw peninsula which sticks out into Lake Superior, reigns as the snow capital of the north. Normal snowfall to this date is 75 inches. The current winter's total is only 63 inches.

The all time record came in the winter of 1950-51 when Houghton officially recorded 282.2 inches of snow—more than 23½ feet.

New 'Kingfish' Squeak

LOS ANGELES (AP)—The Kingfish of the Amos 'N' Andy television show has been ordered held for trial on his wife's complaint of assault with a deadly weapon.

But just as "Kingfish" Harry R. (Tim) Moore, 70, squeaks out of one scrape after another on the program, it looks like he'll avoid this real-life one, too. His wife Vivian, 39, has told the court she doesn't want to prosecute.

The couple sat together, arm in arm and smiling, at his municipal court preliminary hearing yesterday.

Proper Policing Plea Is Made

Amateur Rocketeers Are Worry to Safety-Minded

WASHINGTON (AP)—Some of the youngsters now experimenting with rockets may one day pioneer major scientific achievements.

But their activities now are worrying some safety-minded people.

The National Fire Protection Assn. and the American Rocket Society, for example, are calling for a national program of proper supervision and safe launching sites for young experimenters in what they call an "extremely dangerous" field.

Nobody denies the kids are getting valuable science know-how out of building rockets. But amateur launching efforts have been responsible for numerous accidents and even some deaths in recent months.

Alabama Boy Killed
Just yesterday an 11-year-old boy was killed in Samson, Ala., in the explosion of a home made rocket he and his brother were trying to launch. The brother was hurt.

Who's to do the safety policing job is the question.

Neither the American Red Cross nor the National Safety Council has any program yet.

The military services have been making available their firing ranges and even some co-ast help. In fact, the facilities of the Army's Redstone Arsenal at Huntsville, Ala., one of the nation's major missile test centers, have been offered.

One of the best friends the young rocketeers have is Lt. Col. Charles M. Parkin, Army guided missile coordinator for the Corps of Engineers research and development laboratory at Ft. Belvoir, Va. He also is vice president of the Washington section of the American Rocket Society, a professional organization.

Parkin has been taking youngsters to Army firing ranges to help them test rockets with proper guidance and equipment.

Asks U. S. Program
And through the rocket society, he has made a plea to the secretary of defense for a nationwide program to direct the activities of amateur rocket enthusiasts with proper supervision and a set of safety rules.

In the beginning, Parkin said, he could just pick up a phone and arrange for a test firing for a group of young rocket-makers. But now he said military officials insist that they have in writing how far the rockets may travel, their propellants and other data.

Parkin said he thinks the high schools across the country should get on the space age beam and recognize science and rocket clubs as they do minor and major sports. He suggested awarding letters, numerals or special symbols for science achievements as is done for football or track.

Tips to Amateurs
Parkin had these suggestions for young rocket builders:

1. Get intelligent adult guidance and supervision. Don't go into the basement or attic to experiment on your own.

2. Become familiar with — and obey — rules and regulations of the community, county and state where laws are in effect concerning handling of rocket propellants and explosive materials.

3. And "most important"—don't use potassium chlorate and perchlorates, high explosives or blasting caps. Stay away from the picric acid family, the fulminates and iodate compounds and the dust of metals such as magnesium.

Asks FPC Approval

WASHINGTON (AP)—Niagara Mohawk Power Corp. is asking authority from the Federal Power Commission to acquire the facilities of the Cazenovia Electric Co., Cazenovia, N. Y.

The request from the Syracuse, N. Y., firm was made yesterday. Cazenovia Electric buys its power from Niagara Mohawk and distributes it in Cazenovia, Fenner, Lincoln, Nelson and Sullivan in proper supervision and a set of safety rules.
